Singapore Clears Ground For Last Ditch Struggle

Persons, Stock Removed From Strip Near Isle

Jungle Battle Raging 40 Miles North of Stronghold.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
SINGAPORE, Jan. 28.—The British command cleared the terrain tonight for the Battle of Singapore Island, ordering complete evacuation of civilians and livestock from a mile-wide strip along the southern tip of Johore State, directly opposite the north shore of the island.

This evacuation of the area across a single mile of water from the first defenses of this fortress was described as a "purely precautionary measure." The civilians and their chattels must be out of the area by Friday noon.

Meanwhile, the British, Indian and Australian troops in Johore fought another furious round of their struggle with the picked Japanese troops who have been thrown into the struggle between 40 and 50 miles above Singapore.

Situation in Detail
Across the Johore line the British command said the situation was this:

On the West: "Heavy fighting has taken place around Rengit, south of Sengarang." Here, 40-odd miles north of this fortress, Japanese imperial guards were in action.

On the Center: "In the Kluang-Ayer Hitam area there is no change in the situation, but enemy air activity continued day and night." This is about 50 miles from Singapore.

On the East: "Throughout yesterday contact was maintained with the enemy in the Jema Luang area (55 miles from Singapore). There have been no reports of further enemy landings at Endau (above Jema Luang)."

The most cheering news in the communiqué was at the end: "A considerable number of British and Indian troops who were cut off in the Batu Pahat area now have rejoined the main bodies."

Lost Battalions
These troops, it appeared, duplicated the feat of the Australian lost battalions who cut their way back through jungle and Japanese from the same west coast sector last week.

Although the new British line was described as better calculated to prevent infiltration, an earlier report said that one enemy spearhead of the Japanese fifth division, in the center, had made a considerable penetration south of the railroad center of Kluang.

A military spokesman, announcing a forced British withdrawal in that sector, did not specifically locate the Japanese spearhead, but said it had made the closest approach yet to Singapore.

Along the eastern coast, where Japanese reinforcements previously had landed under heavy British bombing, a major test appeared to be developing, although action was as yet relatively light there.

13 Men Spend Month At Sea in Open Boat

Smyrna Man Among Survivors of Unbelievable 2,500-Mile Trip
in Western Pacific

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—An extraordinary story of 13 men battling the open sea for an entire month, which may become one of the great small boat sagas of maritime history, was reported by the Navy Department tonight on the basis of fragmentary information received from Wellington, New Zealand.

The 13 men in a lifeboat crossed 2,500 miles of open sea from near Honolulu to one of the Gilbert Islands northeast of Australia. Floyd McWilliams, of Smyrna, Ga., was one of the 13.

At 5:30 in the morning of December 19, the steamer Prusa owned by the Lykes Brothers Steamship Company, of Houston, Texas, was torpedoed 100 miles from Honolulu.

Eight were killed, the radio operator was lost and two lifeboats were launched. In one boat were Captain G. H. Boy and 12 men, and in the other was the chief mate and 12 others.

The Prusa sank within nine minutes after the torpedo struck, and those who succeeded in launching the two boats held a hurried consultation and decided to set a course for the Marshall Islands.

In a few days the two lifeboats became separated. The chief mate's boat was sighted by scouting planes which directed a U. S. Coast Guard cutter to its assistance. On December 27, after eight days in the boat, the chief mate and his 12 men were picked up and taken to Honolulu.

No trace of the second lifeboat containing the captain and 12 men was obtained, and for more than a month their fate was unknown.

Then, from Wellington, New Zealand, came the remarkable story that the second lifeboat, after crossing some 2,500 miles of open sea, had landed January 19 on tiny Nukunau island, one of the Gilbert group, approximately 2,500 miles north of New Zealand.

They had been in the open boat from December 19 to January 19. Shortly thereafter, the fourth officer left Nukunau and reached near-by Beru island. The information did not state whether this officer was alone or accompanied.

At this island he made contact with British communications, and his message reached Wellington, New Zealand, for transmission to the United States.

No other details of the voyage were known here tonight.

Banned I. R. A. Is Accused of Helping Nazis

Said To Have Collaborated With Parachuted Agents.

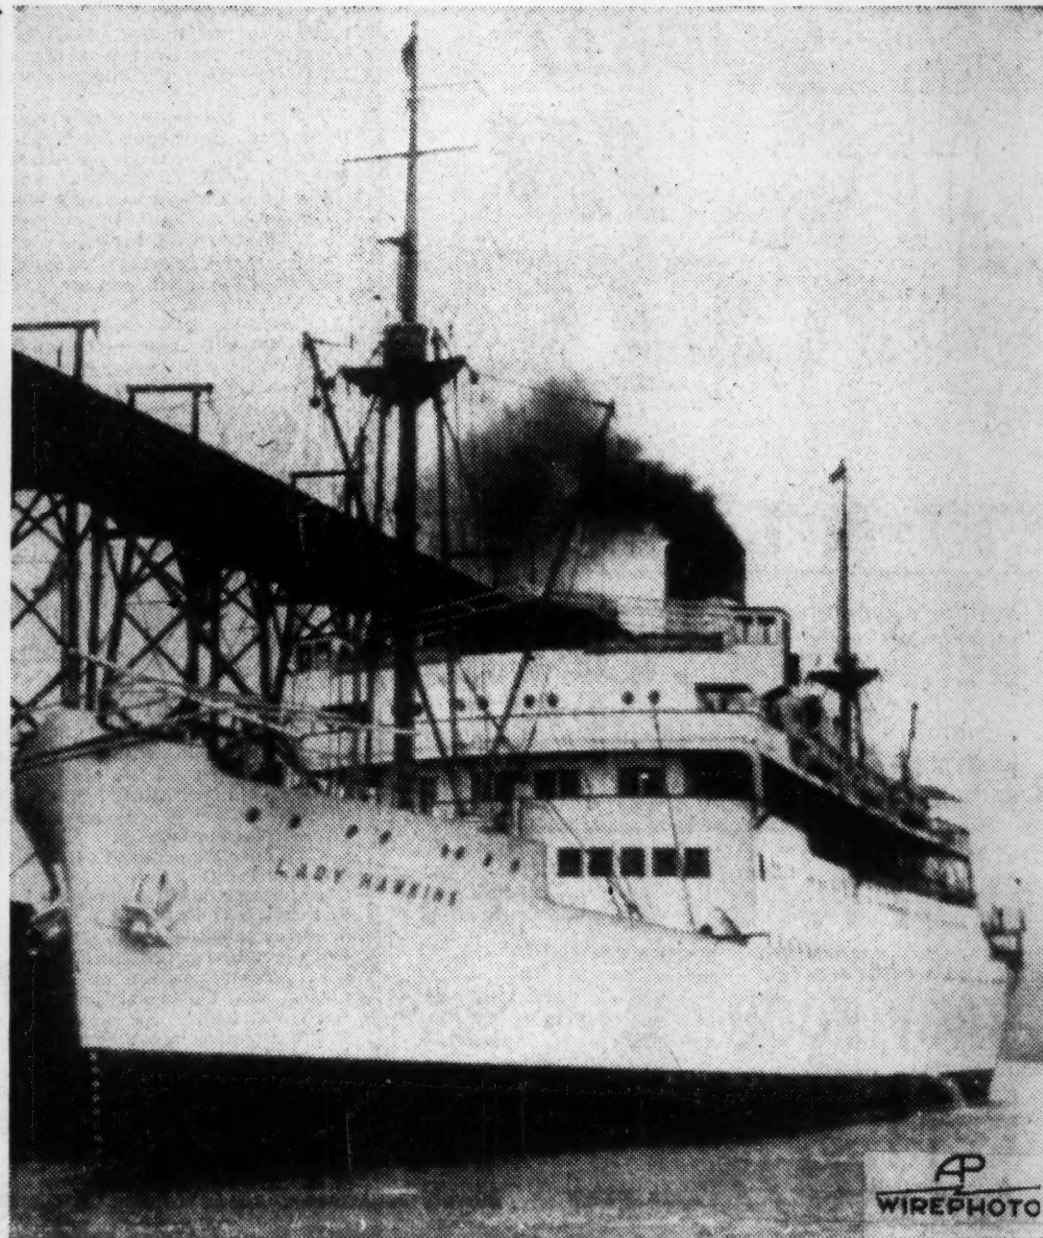

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—The charge that Nazi leaders, dropped by parachute on Eire and later arrested, were "in active collaboration with the Irish Republican army" was made in the Dail tonight by Opposition Leader John Dillon.

Dillon made the charge after Justice Minister George Boland had declared that the banned I. R. A. was attempting "to bring outsiders into this country."

He referred to the arrest of one parachutist, Hermann Goertz, some months after he landed in June of 1940, and said it was "common knowledge that this man was in close contact with the I. R. A. for nine months before he was laid by the heels."

"I. R. A. members have availed themselves of the support of a foreign regime whose agents are making use of them for the purpose of conquest."

VICTIM OF U-BOAT—The Canadian steamer, the Lady Hawkins, has been torpedoed and sunk with the result that 250 persons of her crew and passenger list were tabulated last night as dead or missing. The sinking, most serious from standpoint of life lost among all ship losses off the American coasts in the war thus far, was revealed at noon yesterday when 71 survivors were landed in Puerto Rico.

17 Americans Reach Safety In Puerto Rico

Vessel Goes Down Too
Quickly To Send Out
Radio Plea.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 28.—Two hundred and fifty persons, including Americans, were reported dead or missing tonight after their ship—identified officially in Montreal as the 7,988-ton Lady Hawkins—was sunk 11 days ago in the Atlantic by Axis submarine attacking without warning.

Seventy-one survivors, 17 of them Americans, who had prayed and sung hymns in their tossing lifeboat, were brought to this American outpost today by Captain Helgesen aboard the New York-Puerto Rico steamer Coamo, it was announced at noon today.

He found them last Friday night, five days after the sinking of the vessel, smashed by two torpedoes.

What few details were available tonight indicated that this was by far the heaviest loss of life yet in the Axis submarine offensive off the United States coasts.

15 Are From Missouri.
Fifteen of the rescued Americans were Missourians, 12 of them from St. Joseph.

Another resident of St. Joseph, David Schoonover, was one of five persons who died from exposure in the lifeboat before the Coamo picked up survivors.

Survivors said the first torpedo smashed into No. 2 hold on the port side forward of the bridge. The second wrecked the engine room and doused all lights.

The ship went down so quickly there was no chance of sending an SOS, they said. About 321 persons were aboard at the time, a crew of 109 and some 212 passengers.

Chief Officer Percy A. Kelly commanded the lifeboat which the Coamo found. It was built to accommodate 63 persons, but 76 entered it. Five of them later died, praying for deliverance.

Each time a person died, Mrs. Marian Parkinson, a missionary, whose husband apparently went down with the ship, led the funeral services. Each day she directed the singing of hymns in an effort to keep hope alive.

A two-year-old child was among the survivors, Janet Johnson, daughter of Albert Johnson, a British foreign service officer, and Mrs. Johnson. These people had lost all their possessions in the sinking. Before that they had abandoned other belongings in the flight from Rumania before the German occupation armies.

Officer Kelly rigged up a sail on the lifeboat and directed the careful rationing of what food there was aboard. Each person was fed daily a biscuit, a table.

Warmer Weather Scheduled Today

Generally warmer temperatures are forecast today after a cold early morning. Yesterday's extremes were 41 and 49 degrees.

Rainfall for January has been 2.61 inches—enough for farmlands but lakes and streams are still below their normal water levels because of the 1941 drought.

U.S. Bombers Sink Another Transport

Direct Hit Scored on Jap Cruiser in Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Continuing announcements of the details of the great battle of Macassar straits credited swift-striking American bombers today with sinking another Japanese transport—a big one—and scoring a direct hit upon an enemy cruiser.

This word came from the Army here in a communiqué which also revealed a prolonged lull in the fighting on Luzon island, with the Jap invaders apparently resting and reorganizing for another assault upon General Douglas MacArthur's unyielding defense forces.

One American plane was lost in the attack on the enemy transport and cruiser. It was one of eight which, swinging in toward the Borneo shore, spotted the vessels, the transport in the river at Balikpapan and the cruiser outside the harbor.

The attack raised the total of Jap ships reported sunk and damaged in the Macassar battle to 36 or more. Of these, at least 12 are considered definitely sunk.

Meanwhile, further tightening of the campaign of strategy and command, President Roosevelt, said today.

Ty Ty Gives Atlanta Mark To Shoot At

By LUKE GREENE.
Atlanta and Fulton county, still apathetic to civilian defense registration, yesterday received a stinging challenge from Ty Ty, Ga., a small town in Tift county.

Tiny Ty Ty has only 442 souls within its city limits, but already 271 of those residents, or more than half the population, have registered for civilian defense, A. P. Phillips reported.

Fulton county, with 415,000 residents, has registered approximately 14,000, about 3 per cent. Officials of the Citizens Defense Committee pointed out the example set by Ty Ty only proved what they have been arguing for the past few days—that the coastal and rural sections of Georgia realize their patriotic responsibility and are doing their part, while rich, populous Atlanta and north Georgia are falling down on the job.

On the basis of partial reports from approximately half of the counties, registration for the state as a whole edged up to more than 100,000. However, 500,000 is the goal.

Fulton county needs 30,000 volunteers to man the essential posts in the civilian defense set-up. Failing, then Atlanta will be extremely vulnerable to any enemy that might decide to drop a few bombs.

The schools are still open to take volunteers. They are open each day from noon until 6 o'clock.

The slogan now is "Tie Ty Ty."

Sacrifice Becomes A Bonus Overnight

"It's always darkest before the dawn."
"Every cloud has its silver lining."
"You never know until you try."

All these copybook maxims, and many others, apply to the Atlanta woman who had some furniture was forced to sell. She thought she would be compelled to "practically give it away." A want ad in The Constitution brought such an abundant response she was able to realize a good cash price on the whole lot—"a much better price than I ever dreamed of," she said.

Brother Jailed In Kansas City Heiress' Death

Indictment Is Returned in Year-Old Hammer and Knife Murder.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—George W. Welsh II, her own goodlooking brother, was accused today of the shocking hammer-and-knife murder of pretty, 24-year-old Leila Adele Welsh.

The 28-year-old brother quickly pleaded innocent to the county grand jury indictment returned in the real-life detective story crime.

His trial was set for March 9, anniversary of the day their mother found the girl's mutilated body in her bed in the family's modest south side home. The brother has insisted he was asleep on a davenport in the adjoining living room while his sister was slashed and bludgeoned.

Wealth and family prominence added interest to the crime of horror. Welsh and his sister were heirs to a real estate fortune.

For six weeks, the grand jury—called by Circuit Judge Marion D. Walther in suburban Independence—dug into evidence already exhaustively investigated by both city and county authorities.

Young Welsh who frequently had offered his help to investigating officers was called before the jury soon after his return from the Christmas holidays from Los Angeles, where he had been working as a bookkeeper.

"I hope they unearth some—"

Texas Port Blacked Out as Sub Is Seen

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A Navy report of submarines lurking in shipping lanes off Port Aransas in the Gulf of Mexico today sent airplanes and warships on a hunt for the first enemy U-boats to menace the gulf coast.

Captain Alva Bernhard, commandant of the huge new Naval Air station here, ordered a black-out of the Corpus Christi area and warned all ships to remain in port after reporting that a submarine "doubtlessly German" was sighted by a patrol plane about 15 miles from Port Aransas, fishing village on Mustang Island.

Bernhard said another submarine possibly was near by. "The submarine probably sneaked in during the night with the intention of attacking oil tankers," the commandant asserted.

The original report on the presence of the U-boat came when the Navy Department issued a warning to shipping at Port Arthur, 300 miles distant on the upper Texas coast.

Bernhard said the undersea craft was sighted by a plane from the Naval Air station at 8:30 a. m.

Yankee Pilots Smash Raid on Burma, Down 7

AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS
Rout 37 Planes Though
Outnumbered 3-1.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 28.—(AP)—American volunteer fliers, outnumbered by at least three to one, put to rout a force of 37 enemy planes today, shooting down at least seven of them in a new encounter four miles above the green Burma jungle east of Rangoon.

The Americans lost only one craft themselves, and the pilot of that one landed safely. One of the Americans, "Sandy," son of San Antonio, Texas, shot down two planes himself and may have downed a third.

A communiqué announcing the appearance of the Japanese over the Rangoon area gave full credit to the AVG (American Volunteer Group) in stating that "according to latest reports" seven Japanese planes were destroyed. Five more of the enemy probably were destroyed and nine others were known to have been damaged as they streaked for home, their fragile Japanese army "97" planes completely beaten by the faster and heavier Tomahawks, whose cockpits are sheathed with armorplate.

JAPS THREATEN BOLIVIA.
LA PAZ, Bolivia, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Informed sources said today that Fuyitaro Irie, Japanese charge d'affaires, had delivered a note to the Bolivian foreign office hinting that Japan might blockade the South American coast and halt Bolivia's overseas trade if she severed relations with the Axis.

AWVS Plans Credits For Cooking Course

The Constitution cooking school at the Roxy theater next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be considered credit courses for AWVS members, Mrs. Charles Jagels, chairman of the American Woman's Voluntary Services, and Mrs. Willard Patterson, chairman of the AWVS courses in training, announced yesterday.

"We think so much of the cooking school, especially at this time, when certain foods are beginning to be rationed," Mrs. Patterson said yesterday, "that we are going to have representatives at the school each day to give our members credit for the time they attend."

"We fully realize woman does her best service in defense work in the home, and The Constitution is to be congratulated for bringing to Atlanta a nationally known cooking expert at this time when American housewives are feeling the increased cost of foods and are beginning to note the scarcity of some foods."

Mrs. Mabel Bowen, of Philadelphia, a nationally known cooking authority, who for years has conducted schools from coast to coast, will be in charge of the school. She will be assisted by Miss Sally Saver, The Constitution's full-time cooking authority.

A fashion show, staged by Regenstein's, Peachtree, will precede the cooking school every day. The cooking school will begin promptly at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Roxy theater. Doors will open at 8:30 o'clock each morning.

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A blinding snowstorm overtook five American Army pilots ferrying Harvard trainers from the United States into Canada today, with the result that two crashed, killing their pilots, while the other three made emergency landings at Medicine Hat, Maple Creek, Sask., and near Havre, Mont., across the border.

Names of the dead, both U. S. Army pilots, were withheld.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Jan. 28.—A meeting of the Troup County Citizens Defense Council was held Tuesday evening at the city hall for the purpose of a discussion of plans and activities in the various fields of defense work, and of a co-ordination of activities for a comprehensive campaign in the county perfecting the organization within the next few weeks.

Lick Hitler Completely, Then Talk Peace, Masaryk Urges

U.S. Has Right Idea About Winning War, He Says

By LAMAR BALL.

There's only one way to handle a disturber of the peace and that is to deal him a swift poke in the nose, flatten him and then shoot the works to him when he's in a position to listen to nothing but reason, according to the robust philosophy of Jan Masaryk.

Masaryk, son of the late founder and first president of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, a skilled politician himself, who years ago tried to warn England and France and other points west of the growing menace of Hitler, expresses himself in just that fashion. He speaks the American language a lot more colorfully than most Americans.

Between planes, on a trip from the far west to Rollins College, in Orlando, Fla., Masaryk paused at Municipal Airport yesterday and spoke of the world of today and tomorrow.

Praises U. S. Effort. "The United States," he said, "has gone into this war in the only way that is possible for a victory. 'She's doing an all-out job—and that's the only way to end this war.'

"If America were to inch into this war cautiously as though she had an idea the thing is really going to last only about five years, and she'd better watch her purse-strings—then Germany would feel swell about the whole business. Germany would go to work and make the war last seven or ten years.

"But when America goes in preparing for a 30-year war—she'll mop up with the Germans in five years or less. And that's what America is doing."

Nazis Not Licked. "The Germans," insisted Masaryk, "are not licked. All this ballyhoo about the German confidence being shaken is a lot of rot. The German is strutting today just as he strutted when he swept through Czechoslovakia."

"The only happening in the last few months that has caused the German war lord to squirm was that speech of President Roosevelt in which he explained to what extent the nation is going to win this war. That promise of 125,000 planes was the worst jolt Germany has had."

The Russians are doing a fine job, said Masaryk, and they are accomplishing an admirable job in the immense task of taking the heart out of Germany. "But," he added, "Germany is a long way from defeat through loss of heart or loss of that grim determination to accomplish what she set out to do."

Hitler's Poke Coming. "America is going to give Hitler that poke in the nose he has been needing so badly. She's going to flatten him. And then—the peace?"

"The mere cessation of hostilities in this war will certainly not be a peace. Hatred will assert themselves more positively when the armistice has been declared. There'll be two or three years of revenge and retribution for those who have been forced to suffer and submit. The Quislings? Masaryk slid an impressive finger across his throat. "Those heinobers up the street will have to be attended to—those who have been helping the Quislings quietly without even the courage to do it openly."

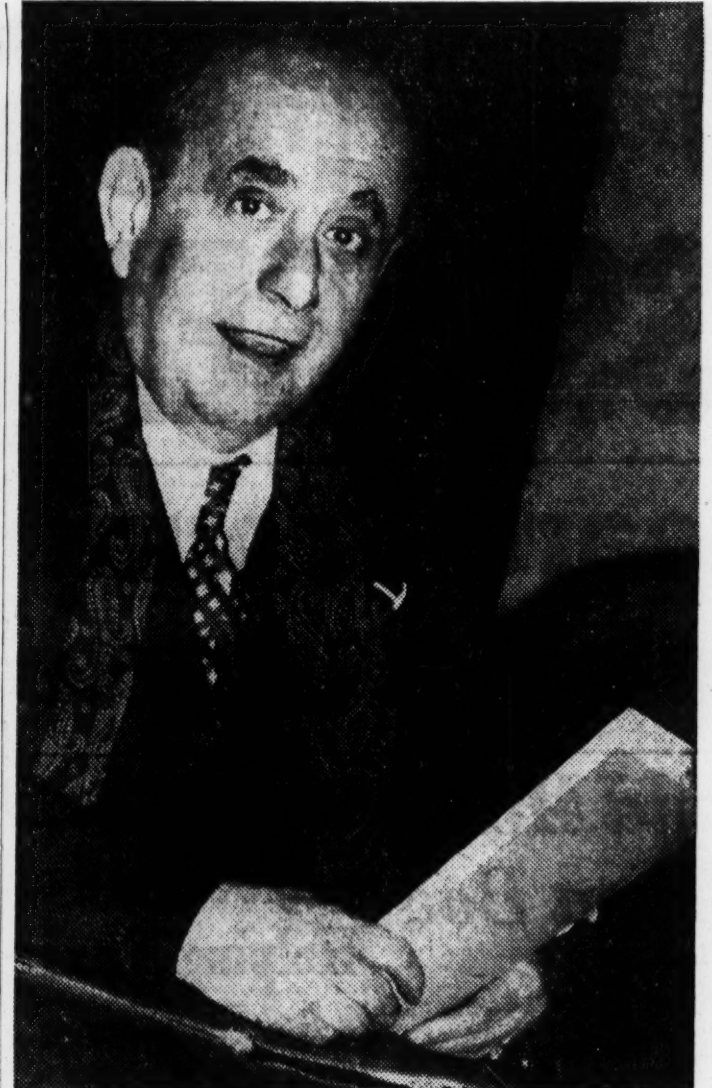

"The cessation of hostilities will mean only assassinations everywhere and justified acts of retaliation."

"There'll be 30,000 dead lying in the streets of Rotterdam alone, an hour after the armistice has been declared."

Too Much Hate. "There is too much hate in this world today to hope for a quick cooling-off process."

"There'll be no Doorn for Hitler. 'I expect to see Hitler wiped out by his own people long before Germany throws in the sponge. Those Prussians are in the saddle and they'll attend to Hitler long before Germany is conquered."

"But the United States must not stop when those Prussians decide it's time to quit as they did in the last war. The war must be carried right into Berlin and continued until the world is straightened out.

"Personally, I hope for a federated Europe, with the nations working together as your states work in America. How it will be effected, I don't know. There's lots of hatred abroad in Europe and those hatreds will continue. But—I do know that Germany must be wiped to her knees and disarmed down to her last pop-gun."

"We can't expect this peace to be accomplished over the week end."

"The only possible peace is going to be a harder job than the war."

"Some sort of long, hard laboratory procedure will be needed to straighten out this mess. Common horse sense must prevail and we can't start thinking about how that will be bred into the minds of all Europeans until the war is over. Too many nations in Europe have been mere pawns in the hands of the big guys. That will have to be attended to."

"An economic set-up, with free-flowing trade, will be needed. More so than any political victory."

Everyone will have to be brought together and, the good Lord knows, that certainly will be a tremendous job."

"But—we're going to win."

"President Roosevelt already has won this war."

"It's just merely a question of how long it will be before the Germans will see actual evidence of the American plans and find it driven into their thick skulls that America was really in earnest."

"It takes the Prussian a long time to see the point."

"But—he'll see it."

Jan Masaryk was the Czechoslovakian minister to Great Britain when Hitler poured his mechanized forces into the Czech country while the Czech president, Edouard Benes, was in Berlin arguing.

He is the accepted leader of the Czechs today.

"I have a way of talking back and forth with my imprisoned countrymen every day," he said yesterday. "Their spirits are fine. They're just waiting."

The Lady Hawkins, launched at Birkenhead, England, in 1928, was a 14-knot ship, 438 feet long, with accommodations for 235 passengers.

With other ships of the Canadian National Steamship's white fleet of five "Lady" boats, she plied the Atlantic before the war between Canadian and West Indies ports, touching at Boston and New York.

A sister ship, the Lady Somers, was sunk July 17, 1941.

British fliers, striking eastward in a Thursday night attack, were said to have inflicted heavy damage on Bangkok, capital of Japanese-controlled Thailand.

On the ground, British and Burmese troops engaged the advanced forces of Japanese and Thai invaders on an extended front northeast of Moulmein.

(central standard time), and that he directed it to "maintain contact" with the U-boat.

"It evidently frightened the submarine, because it submerged," he said.

"It is possible that the second submarine is also in the vicinity, since it is known that they have been operating in pairs elsewhere. Shortly after the submarine was sighted a smoke bomb appeared out of the water four miles south of it."

It was explained that smoke bombs, released by undersea vessels, rise like rockets and frequently are used as signals of distress.

Australians Wreck 4 Jap Troop Vessels

Fleet of 11 Transports Lying at Rabaul Hit by Airmen.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Australian airmen attacking Japanese held Rabaul, capital of New Britain Island some 800 miles off the northern mainland, have wrecked four of the 11 Japanese transports lying there, Army Minister Francis Forde announced today.

Two of the three ships attacked Monday were set afire, and a fourth was wrecked in a previous bombing, he said. Other ships were reported damaged.

There was no word from Australian militia last reported fighting the invaders in the hills south of the port.

Australian government circles do not share Prime Minister Churchill's doubt that the Japanese will attempt an invasion of the mainland, it was said today. Although no official reaction was issued, it was learned on good authority that the leaders regard the invasion of their outlying islands as a definite threat to the continent, and of course all security measures are founded on that belief.

"We have one supreme task," Prime Minister John Curtin said today, "namely to defeat the enemy or die. . . . There is no use preaching the teachings of the Apostles to the enemy. The only epistle he understands is the whine of bullets."

Master Printers Hear Harvey Cox

"This nation must choose between a dictatorship of the Hitler type or a new self-discipline if it is to survive after the present war," President Harvey W. Cox, of Emory University, told the Atlanta Master Printers' Club at the annual dinner meeting last night at the Athletic Club.

Auto Dealer Tax Is Cut in Georgia

Georgia yesterday ordered a state licensing tax on retail automobile dealers cut in half this year.

The action, it was said, would be reported to the next general assembly for approval.

Automobile and tire rationing have cut into the business of dealers to such an extent that it was considered unfair for them to bear the full tax.

The levy was provided for in a 1935 act. It varies from $25 to $275 a year, depending on the population of the county in which the new car dealer operates, and ranges from $25 to $100 on dealers selling used cars exclusively.

Troup County Stock Sale Totals $4,101.09

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Jan. 28.—The semi-monthly stock sale, conducted at the Bacon street stockyards Tuesday by the Troup County Livestock Association totaled $4,101.09 for Troup county farmers. Passing through the ring were 130 head of cattle, 71 hogs and two goats. This brings the January total sale of livestock here to $9,640.49, as compared to the January, 1941, total of $1,389.50, which is a gain in dollars and cents commensurate with the gain in interest of farmers throughout Troup county in this increased revenue from farm products.

Biddle Heartens Federal Prisoners Aiding Defense

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Men in prison like a pat on the back as well as the next man. The two thousand residents of the Federal Penitentiary here got one that warmed their hearts yesterday when Francis Biddle, the attorney general of the United States, shook off a case of gripe to come down from Washington and tell them what a grand job for defense they are doing in their prison industries.

Lauding them for stepping their working week up voluntarily from 40 hours to 62 hours a week, increasing by 100 per cent their output of textiles for the Army, the slender attorney general said: "It is heartening to know America inspires the kind of loyalty which makes you willing to work longer hours and assume greater tasks despite your situation and your personal difficulties."

Voluntary Efforts.

"The efforts you have put forth here have been entirely voluntary. You have not been driven to your tasks. . . . You have been moved by the sincere belief the defense of your country demands the unstinted effort of every one of its sons."

"You have shown that even though you are behind these walls you can make a practical contribution to the defeat of Hitler and his gang. Your efforts . . . are the symbol of the realistic determination with which every class of our population is arising to defend America. It is such unity of purpose that makes America invincible."

"America inspires deep loyalties because even in time of crisis our democratic system recognizes the essential worthiness of every human life. Indeed, the prisons of America allow more freedom of expression and have more respect for fundamental human rights than the highest councils of the dictators."

Splendid Example.

"You have set a splendid example for all the rest of American industry."

These words fell sweetly upon the ears of men whose only contributions to national defense so far can be the work of their hands at the looms of the prison mills. They applauded the slim Philadelphia with the scraggly moustache with loud acclaim.

They were pleased and expressed it volubly, too, when Biddle, as he finished speaking, called to the platform 25 old-timers, men with more than four years in prison behind them, who by their record of work and their good conduct had earned an "Award of Honor."

To Andy Szyrak, the first one, given to an old con with 14 years behind him, read, "for his spirit and demonstrated loyalty to his country's work effort, and for loyalty and attention to duty above and beyond ordinary requirements, this award represents the appreciation and acclaim of his superiors for performance of vital importance to the national effort . . . a citation for staunch and effective Americanism."

Present for Biddle.

When the award had been passed out, Morris Rudensky, one-time train robber, now editor of the prison magazine, cornered Congressman Louis C. Rabaut and presented the attorney general with a "Memorandum of Faith," the pledge of the men in prison.

"We are prisoners, true," it said. "But we are American prisoners. We are felons, Mr. Attorney General, but beneath the veneer of our felony we are Americans, as good as those who fight in the front lines and better than those who have marched in the picket lines."

Rudensky, a shining example of how enlightened penology can make a good man out of a one-time toughie, then made a little speech, after first confessing that being up on the stage with all the "big shots" confused him somewhat.

Blushing furiously and speaking in a heavy Brooklynese bearing little resemblance to his clear and flowing prose, the 20-year resident of the Big House then said:

"Remarkable" Meeting.

"It strikes me that it is a remarkable and inspiring thing that a cabinet member and a convict can meet like this, on common ground, with mutual trust in each other, and shake hands and wish each one well and mean it from the heart."

"I hope you take it as a symbol that the 200,000 American men in prison are waiting, eager to be used."

As the dignitaries on the platform were introduced all got a rousing cheer, but none were applauded as loud and long as Judge Marvin E. Underwood, of the federal district court here, a tribute to a judge whose interest in the men he sentences goes with them into prison.

Tours Prison.

Before the speech-making finale, Attorney General Biddle had made a complete tour of the prison under the guidance of Warden Joseph W. Sanford. He saw 17,000 spinning spindles spinning,

PRAISES PRISONERS—Attorney General Francis Biddle yesterday came to Atlanta to tell the 2,000 men at Federal prison their untiring labor in prison defense industries was a shining example to all industry in the country. Expressing great satisfaction at the "non-institutional" atmosphere of the prison, he paid high tribute to Warden Joseph W. Sanford as one of the "outstanding prison administrators in the country."

Prisoners Anxious For Crack at Japs

If Uncle Sam needs fighting men he can raise a regiment just by opening the big gate out at Federal Prison.

When the big-wigs were visiting the institution yesterday Morris Rudensky, inmate-editor of the prison magazine, cornered Congressman Louis C. Rabaut and pleaded with him to "go back to Washington and tell them to pass a law so we can get out of here to fight the Japs."

The congressman said he'd think about it.

However, Associate Editor Richard Jordan, also a prisoner, has been known to take a more cynical view of the prisoners' desire to fight.

"Most of these claims that 'I want to get out of here so I can fight the Japs,' he once wrote, 'could be simply boiled down to 'I wanta get out of here!'"

9,000 twisting spindles twisting, 534 shuttling looms and 177 sewing machines all turning out the heavy textiles that go into tents and canvas water reservoirs for the Army, and 100 other defense products from mattresses to laundry bags.

He inspected the kitchen, the hospital and the athletic field, and in one of the mills paused to hear a band led by Blue Steele, one-time big name dance band leader, play a medley of marches from "The Black Prince" to the "Guard Patrol."

Accompanying him were James V. Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons; Congressman Louis C. Rabaut, of Michigan; United States District Attorney Lawrence Camp; Supreme Court Justice Charles Reid; Congressman Robert Ramo; Dr. M. L. Brittain and a group of newsreel and still cameramen and reporters.

Pausing before one block of single cells he peered in.

"Looks very much like the one I had at school," he said. He didn't say whether he meant Groton or Harvard.

Seeks To Revive Oyster Industry

Plans to revive the once flourishing oyster industry along the Georgia coast were announced yesterday by Zach D. Cravey, state commissioner of natural resources. Although oyster fishing in Georgia has dwindled to negligible proportions in recent years, Cravey said it could be developed into a $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 business a year if properly managed. He said restocking oyster beds along the coast, from Savannah to Brunswick, probably would be started within a few days.

U. S. Is Paying Own Way in State Schools

Allotments Have Been Made for Buildings, Maintenance.

Uncle Sam is paying his way—at least—for the use of Georgia schools for defense workers' children. Figures made public yesterday by Lester M. Marx, regional director of FWA's division of defense public works, made this clear.

Most war-industry areas, he pointed out, have found their schools sorely taxed by sudden influx of workers' families. While equal to their own, they have not been able, within themselves, to meet the newly developed needs. Thus, the federal government has been called on for help.

Important allotments for buildings have been $540,000 for the Newton D. Baker Village elementary school, Muscogee county; $171,000, Savannah school; $53,000, Hinesville additions. Grants for maintenance and operation of schools include: $38,000, Savannah; $38,000, Muscogee county; $26,000, Bibb county; $18,000, Chattahoochee county; $8,000,

LABOR PAYS FOR 1942. WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 28.—The first fully paid-up membership of the Chamber of Commerce for 1942 is Local Union No. 779, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the membership being handed in by M. H. Reed and H. E. McGinnis. They stated that the Chamber of Commerce and all civic enterprises can count on the full, uninterrupted support of organized labor.

"In many instances," said Director Marx, "cities and counties had been planning new schools or additions to care for their own growing needs. In such cases, the city or county has entered into agreement with the Federal Works Agency to contribute what its normal amount would have been, and the government has made up the difference."

"In other cases, the additional population has been traceable entirely to war industries, whereupon the FWA has granted all of the money for the new facilities. "The additional structures naturally call for more teaching personnel and for other services. The maintenance and operation grants are to meet these demands."

Questions, Answers About Defense Registration Given

Georgia is now in the midst of a determined, patriotic campaign to register its civilian population for home defense work.

State, county and city officials say this campaign is progressing. The people are registering. They were slow at first, but now they are catching on. However, more volunteers are needed—more volunteers who are capable and willing to do the job that is required to protect this state against enemy attack.

In the course of registration, questions have come up which indicated all citizens do not understand exactly what they are being asked to do. In an effort to clear up some of these doubts, The Constitution is presenting the following questions and answers, which are typical of those being asked at registration headquarters in Atlanta, Fulton county and over the state.

Q. Who should register?
A. Every man, woman and child over 15 years of age who wishes to join in a great co-operative effort to protect his own life and property as well as that of his neighbors.

Register at Schools.
Q. Where should you register?
A. In Atlanta and Fulton county, you may register at your nearest school, which will be open from noon to 6 o'clock at night to receive volunteers, or at downtown volunteer headquarters, 246 Peachtree street, which is open from 9:30 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Generally over the state, the schools have been designated as places of registration.

Q. What can you register to do?

A. You can register to join the air-raid wardens, auxiliary police, auxiliary firemen, fire watchers, medical corps, rescue squad, nurses' aid corps, messengers, drivers' corps, demolition and clearance crews, road repair crews and staff corps, or perform other duties that may arise.

To Be Trained.
Q. Will you be called immediately to perform the job for which you register?

A. The prospects are that you won't. The first job is to complete registration and classification as to jobs. As soon as this has been finished, training courses will begin. Chances are that you will not be called on to do anything until you are ready to be trained. So do not think you are being overlooked simply because you get no immediate instructions.

Q. Do you register for civilian defense when you register with the Red Cross or the American Women's Volunteer Corps or similar groups?

A. No. In order to be allied with this civilian army you must register specifically for civilian defense. The work of these other groups will be closely tied in with the civilian defense program from a training standpoint and there is no conflict between them, but the state wants an accurate record of all volunteers in the civilian ranks.

Uniform Unnecessary.
Q. Do you have to have a uniform?

A. Absolutely not. The only official designation is an arm band, and this must be earned. You will not have to buy a uniform if you register for civilian defense. The uniform is merely something extra left to the discretion of the individual. The arm band must be earned. Uniforms are not necessary or needed.

Q. How far do you have to commit yourself when you register?
A. Only so far as you wish to go. Everything about this program is voluntary. You designate the time you will be able to give to it, whether you can work one night a week or two nights or one whole day. You will not be called upon to do anything for which you have not volunteered. No demands will be made upon you.

Q. Will you have to neglect your work?

A. Certainly not. You will perform your duties during your off-hours, since it is particularly important that production be kept moving at top speed. Your business or profession will not suffer unless, of course, there is an actual air raid when every man must be at his post.

Q. Will you be called out at night to guard the water works or perform similar duties?

A. No. Guard duty at such places is the job of the State Guard or other organizations. The civilian defense program calls for specialists of various types. You will be trained for a particular job and you will do this job only during an emergency such as an air raid.

Q. Will you be assigned definitely to perform the duties for which you register?

A. In so far as it is possible. In some cases those who classify the registrants may find that a person is better qualified to do some job other than that for which he registered. In such cases the proper transfers will be made. A person who asked to be an auxiliary policeman, for example, may be better equipped to be an auxiliary fireman, or a member of the rescue squad.

Women Needed.
Q. Should a husband and wife both register?

A. Yes. Women are needed in this program as badly as men. In many cases they are qualified to serve as air raid wardens or assistants. They certainly fit into the picture and should not hesitate to register.

Q. Is it important for children over 15 to register also?

A. Yes. Boys and girls are especially needed to become messengers and perform similar duties.

Q. If a woman has children and cannot leave home, should she register?

A. By all means. Even though a person must stay at home there are many tasks, such as sewing and knitting, that can be carried on in the home. Not everybody can be an auxiliary policeman or air raid warden. The small jobs are important, too. Also it is important that we know those who should not be taken from their homes.

Q. If you register will you be

Alfred Knopf, N.Y. Publisher, On Visit Here

Good Year Is Predicted for All Circulating Libraries.

Alfred A. Knopf, of New York, publisher of books of various types, enjoyed two new experiences yesterday. He was getting his first glimpse of the south—on a rather foggy day from a Billmore hotel window—and he met Margaret Mitchell for the first time.

Asked if he is down south looking for another "Gone With the Wind," he sighed.

"There's only one of that," he said. "They come once in a lifetime."

"Southern novels?" he said, in reply to a question. "No, I'm not on the trail of any."

Book on Georgia.
"But about midway we're going to bring out Hal Steed's book. It is entitled, 'Georgia, Unfinished State.'"

Hal Steed, formerly an Atlanta newspaperman, several years ago sold the Saturday Evening Post a series of stories based on Atlanta real estate.

"Knopf has published several books by southern writers," the publisher continued. "Last year, Will Percy's 'Lanterns on the Levee' and 'Mind of the South,' by W. J. Cash. The year before we published 'Foundation Stone,' by Lella Warren."

Knopf wasn't certain about the effect of the war on book sales, he said at a luncheon given by Helen Parker, of Rich's.

"They slumped off after Pearl Harbor," he said. "But I look for a fairly good year."

Cheap Entertainment.
"I think it's going to be a good year for circulating libraries, public and private. Books present a paradox. They are luxuries for the rich, necessities for the poor. With taxes rising the rich are likely to reduce their book buying. But the folk with less money find reading the cheapest of all entertainment—whether they buy or rent books."

Knopf is credited by many readers with setting the pace among American publishers in "dressing up" books, both fiction and those of a heavier nature. He is said by book dealers to have brightened up "jackets" and improved format and typography to a considerable extent.

Knopf also pioneered in devoting his company to translations of books which had achieved success in other countries. He has published five Nobel prize winners, the current numbers being by Sigrid Undset and Thomas Mann.

League of Voters Adopts Program

The Atlanta League of Women Voters, assembled at the Georgian Terrace for their annual meeting yesterday, adopted a comprehensive 11-point program of civic improvement as their 1942 objective.

Principal items in the league's program for this year include a joint health program for Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties under a non-political board; a professional staff chosen on the basis of experience and ability, and civil service for Fulton county employees under a non-political board. It will work for a joint planning authority for the metropolitan area.

Officials of Allection of Atlanta officials in odd years and recommends co-education in Atlanta high school and a joint recreation program for Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Edwards To Seek Attorney's Post

Senator H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, said yesterday he planned to be a candidate for attorney general in this year's elections.

Before formally announcing, he is understood to be sounding out his chances of having administration support and the possibility that Randall Evans, of Thomson, speaker of the house, would be a candidate.

making a definite contribution to our patriotic cause?

A. This is your greatest contribution. All cannot fight in the Army, Navy or Air Corps. The production lines must not stop. And if production is to keep going civilians must prepare to protect their humming industries from air raids. It is a movement to protect lives and property, your own life and your own property, but it can be successful only through the co-operation of the many. Do your patriotic duty and register now.

4 New Wartime Classes Will Begin at Emory

Four more special wartime courses will begin tonight and tomorrow night at Emory University, as a part of Emory's emergency educational program. Two hundred and nineteen Emory students and Atlantans have registered for six special courses which began last week. The courses are free except for a $1 registration fee.

Beginning at 8 o'clock tonight is a course in "Climate and Weather," which includes map reading and weather forecasting to be taught by Professor Arthur C. Munyan, of Emory's geology department.

SEEING THE SOUTH. Alfred A. Knopf, New York publisher, yesterday was seeing Atlanta for the first time. He said he liked what he'd seen of it—from a hotel window. He looks for more interest in books this year.

Louie Newton, Governor Will Ride Bicycle

Mrs. LeCraw Will Join Mayor Sunday in Wheel Parade.

Governor Talmadge and the Rev. Louie D. Newton, neither of whom has ridden a bicycle since the Spanish-American War, will give their all for national defense Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock when they join the cavalcade of wheelmen from the state capitol to Piedmont park.

Councilman Howard Haire, wearing a red carnation in his lapel and mother-of-pearl ankle clips to keep his trousers leg from catching in the sprocket, will lead the procession.

The Governor, Haire quoted State Patrol Director Johnny Goodwin as saying, will ride solo, being a daring man, but the Rev. Mr. Newton, who used to be able to walk the pedals with both hands off, will snare a tandem with Clark Lyndon.

Councilman Haire said Mrs. Roy LeCraw had also decided to join her husband, the mayor, in the parade.

Worth Youth Killed When Hit by Truck

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. SYLVESTER, Ga., Jan. 28.—Thomas Odom Jr., 17, was instantly killed about noon today on the Sylvester-Cordele highway when he was hit by a truck driven by J. C. Reeves, of Rhine, Ga., Sheriff J. N. Sumner said.

The accident, which occurred about 18 miles from Sylvester, was termed unavoidable by Sheriff Sumner. No charges were filed against Reeves.

The truck, loaded with cotton, was en route from Sylvester to Rhine when the accident occurred.

U. S. Provides Help for Small Manufacturers

Priority, Material Problems To Be Lessened Under Plan.

Beginning this morning, Georgia's 900 small manufacturers will find their priority-materials problems greatly lessened.

A single-page, simplified application will be available at the office of John B. Reeves, district manager, production field service, War Production Board, in the first floor of the Hurt building, and aid will be available to each manufacturer in fitting himself into the war industrial picture to the best possible advantage.

The new system was explained yesterday by Reeves upon his return from Washington, where the step was decided on. Manufacturers with an annual volume of less than $100,000 are affected. "The new plan," said Reeves, quoting an official release, "is designed to enable the small manufacturer engaged in war essential civilian production more quickly and easily to obtain priority assistance to meet his needs for scarce materials."

"An added and important feature of the plan is the opportunity it affords applicants to list power-driven equipment. This information is relayed to the division of industry co-ordination, making possible its use in war production. It is expected to bring to light a great deal of machinery in small plants not now in use for national needs."

An important limitation was made clear by Reeves. "The plan," he declared, "is not intended to maintain non-essential industries when no effort is being made to tie production into the war program. It will help, however, in keeping organizations together during change-over periods from non-essential to war work."

Every day Constitution Want Ads start many people on the highway to happiness.

TO KEEP SIRENS.
COLUMBUS, Jan. 28.—(P)—City commissioners have declined a request by the local defense council that use of sirens on fire engines, police car and ambulances be prohibited. The defense council made the suggestion with a view to using sirens only for air raid warnings.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling old or aorta, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Broken Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Distresses, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Oxids, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids
Nature provides the kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 20 times an hour, night and day, and it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician prescribed Cystex to help thousands of people suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in three simple ways: 1. Help the kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisonous and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and stinging of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if

Unusual Movie Week-6 New Films Offered

Programs Mix Drama,
Comedy, Music With Outstanding Stars.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

It's one of those rare movie weeks—six new shows.

Opening today are "Playmates" at the Paramount, "Hell-zapoppin'" at the Fox, "Unholy
Partners" at the Rialto and "The Mad Doctor of Market Street" plus "The Wolf Man" at the Roxy theater.

Tomorrow the Capitol will offer
"The Sweater Girl Follies" on the stage and Jane Withers in "Small Town Deb," no reflection on her home town intended, on the screen.

Yesterday's initial unrolling was
"The Bugle Blows" at Loew's. The Rhodes begins a holdover of "Johnny Eager." Reviews of all these new films will appear tomorrow morning. A gist of what the new shows are about appears below.

Paramount

Bringing together two of the top entertainers of the amusement world—Kay Kyser and John Barrymore, "Playmates" opens a first-run engagement at the Paramount theater with musical comedy predominating, but with Kyser's satire on Shakespeare a top laugh-getter.

This third in a series of successful Kyser starring films gives him a supporting cast which also includes Lupe Velez, May Robson,
Ginny Simms and Patsy Kelly.
The story concerns a press agent's stunt and the results it brings.

Barrymore and Kyser play themselves. John is having income tax trouble and his press agent is trying to wrangle him a profitable contract for a radio show under the sponsorship of a vitamin pillmaker—not that the two are related. But the pillmaker wants somebody like Kyser. The press agent and Kyser's P. A. invent a publicity stunt to have Kyser take Shakespearean lessons from Barrymore. Both principals

RAVISHINGLY REGAL—That's a two-word description of Ginny Simms, who adds class, song and finally comedy to the new Kay Kyser starring film, "Playmates," a musical comedy opening a first-run engagement at the Paramount theater today. Kay and Ginny play a romantic interlude and Kyser does a streamlined takeoff on William Shakespeare for the film.

objects, but the pillmaker agrees to give Barrymore the contract if Kyser and John appear together in a Shakespearean festival. John, intending to doublecross Kay, takes the agreement so he can make love to Ginny Simms.

Kyser outwits the wiley John and presents a swing version of Shakespeare in the climax. Lupe Velez plays the role of the excitable Carmen; May Robson is Kyser's matter-of-fact grand-mother and Patsy Kelly and Peter Lind Hayes are the press agents.

with the old-fashioned slides asking Johnny to go home to his mother; the user who runs up and down the aisle with the tree that keeps growing; and all the wacky props that Olsen and Johnson made use in, making "Hellzapoppin'" a four-year hit on Broadway, where it is still running.

For support to the comedians there are Martha Raye, Mischa Auer and a light romance between a rich girl and a friend of O. and J.

"Hellzapoppin'" is designed to give the mass audience laughs, chuckles and a generally good two hours without care. Some of the stunts they pull are corny, but they are so corny they are funny.

A midnight preview audience at the Fox last Saturday night was howling with laughter through-

Whisky Is High Abroad, AEF Soon Learns

American Soldiers Get Ready for Expected
Nazi Raids.

SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN IRELAND, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The United States forces began to learn today about Nazi bombers and the high cost of whisky.

After devoting their first day in camp yesterday to resting, they settled down to duties, and almost immediately were made aware of the expectation of their officers that the Germans may well be preparing an early baptism of bombing for the new arrivals.

Camp air-raid shelters are strategically placed, so that all the men will be able to take cover within a matter of seconds after they have completed the drilling begun today.

Training the men in what to do in case of an air raid is not confined, it was pointed out, to the most efficient way to take cover.

The youthful Americans are adjusting themselves rapidly to their new living conditions. The first complaint heard from the troops was that whisky is twice as expensive as at home, and there already is a cigarette shortage among them.

When the Americans first entered the small town, they attracted much attention and friendly banter frequently was exchanged with passersby.

A problem of shopkeepers was created by the fact that the soldiers had only American currency. This was readily accepted, with change being given in British coin, but several tradesmen expressed the fear that they soon would have their change drawers filled with United States money and be forced to suspend their businesses until they are able to convert it.

When the Americans first turned up in town the Ulsterites crowded around to shake their hands and ask them in for drinks and food. The local people noticed that the queerest thing about them is that they live with their caps on. British soldiers usually tuck their forage caps under their shoulder straps when indoors.

The political aspects of the Americans' arrival here continued to be discussed today in Belfast, the Northern Ireland capital.

Prime Minister John M. Andrews told parliament that Eamon de Valera, premier of independent Eire, was outside his rights in protesting the Americans' arrival in Northern Ireland.

Two Fulton county jurors yesterday invested their jury scrip in defense saving stamps.

V. B. Shiel, of High Point road, and Horace Beck, of Club drive, saw a sign in the county treasurer's office announcing defense stamps were on sale there.

Shiel asked for his $15 pay in stamps. Beck drew $12 in stamps.

MERCER-WESLEYAN QUIZ.

Macon, Jan. 28.—Student teams of Mercer University and Wesleyan College will meet in a quiz program Thursday at 8:30 p. m. in the Mercer chapel.

The Mercer team held a recent decision over the Wesleyan girls.

New York tabloid newspaper, while Edward Arnold enacts the role of the city's leading racketeer who believes, erroneously, that he controls the editor and his paper by reason of the money he put in its establishment.

The struggle between these two forces of justice and corruption is tremendously exciting. Too, there is a very fine romance in the story, which comes to proper denouement. And there is sufficient comedy to provide all the laughs needed.

As the romance ends, the editor reaches the climax of his own life. The supporting cast includes Laraine Day, Marsha Hunt, William T. Orr, Don Beddoe and Walter Kingsford.

Capitol

Today for the last times, the Capitol theater offers a thrilling story of the underground activities of the Free French in Paris, "Paris Calling," starring Randolph Scott, Basin Rathbone and others.

Starting tomorrow, another stage-screen program is scheduled and this time the flesh portion of the program is "Sweater Girl Follies," produced by Solie Childs, one of the south's foremost producers of stage revues. A cast of 35 are featured in the unit, including The Sweetheartettes, a line of talented and pretty dancing girls.

Star vaudeville acts are Paige and Jewett, outstanding unicycle act; Woolsey and Claire, the lego-manics; Joe Franklin, the man with the talking dogs; the Two Barons, hand-to-hand and head-to-head balancing stunts; little Miss Kiki, the song stylist, and a host of others.

On the screen, the Capitol will offer a gay new comedy, "Small Town Deb," starring Atlanta's own Jane Withers in her first grown-up part. She is ably assisted by a special cast headed by Jane Darwell, Academy Award winner; Bruce Edwards, and a host of others.

thing," he said then.

Today Edgar J. Fleming, uncle of young Welsh and the slain girl, described the indictment as "preposterous."

"This family thought they had suffered the limit of grief from Leila's death," he said, "and this preposterous charge against George, coming on top of it, is almost more than they can bear."

"We feel, too, it closes the door to following up clues and the real solution we have always hoped for."

Myriad clues were found after the slaying. Cigarette butts, a butcher knife stuck nearly to the hilt in the earth outside the bedroom window, and footprints of what police believed to be a small man were among them.

Lear B. Reed, then police chief, told of a bold initial in blood traced on one of the girl's legs. Recently, in writing a series of newspaper articles on the crime, he said for the first time that the letter was a "G."

The investigation developed heated rivalry between officials of the county, dominated by remnant of the old T. J. Pendergast political organization, and the state-controlled police.

U. S. Bombers Sink Another Big Transport

Secretary of War Stimson and top ranking officers of the Army and Navy were in conference at the White House with highly placed officers of the British services.

For the American services, the conferees consisted of General George C. Marshall, the chief of staff; Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps; Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of Naval operations; and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

The British representatives were Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Lieutenant General Sir Colville Weems, Air Marshal A. T. Harris and Admiral Sir Charles Little.

Prior to the Army's announcement of the sinking of the transports, Allied headquarters in Batavia, Java, had told of a similar action involving American flyers. Whether both announcements dealt with the same developments, or whether American bombers had participated successfully in two such encounters could not be determined officially.

A study of the wording of the Batavia statement and of time differentials led some Army officers to believe there had been two actions, but they would not say so definitely.

The Army's communique follows:

1. Philippine theater: "There was a practically no ground activity on the Bataan peninsula yesterday. The enemy landed relatively small numbers in the Subic bay area. Enemy air activity was limited to reconnaissance flights."

2. Netherlands Indies: "Further reports of the action in Macassar straits disclose that eight heavy American Army bombers sank a large Japanese transport in the river at Balikpapan and scored a direct hit on a cruiser outside the harbor. During this attack, one of our bombers was lost."

"In a previous attack by our planes in this action, one enemy transport was sunk and another set afire, as reported January 26."

Bonus Raises Sought for 46 City Workers

Group Was Not Included in Employees Who Received Increases.

The City Personnel Board yesterday prepared to urge the City Mediation Board to grant bonus increases to 46 of the 300 workers not granted bonuses along with 1,900 municipal employees.

The board will be asked to consider these employees who were raised last year to minima recommended by the Personnel Board. The aggregate sum involved by this recommendation is about $1,687.

The 300 complaining employees were given raises last year totaling more than the 10 per cent allowed by the bonus and were not given increases this year when the bonuses were allowed for the first six months of the year. The hearing will begin at 11 o'clock this morning at the city hall.

Half a dozen employees at Grady hospital, whose salaries are paid by the county, believe they are the forgotten men and women of the present city-county salary raising program. Both the city and the county have voted raises amounting to 10 per cent of the old salaries for the year 1942, but the Grady "orphans" are not included in either list.

Churchill Reports

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in his eagerly awaited report to the House of Commons, gave to the world a word picture of steadily growing Allied might. At the same time he warned of further bad news which will probably come, especially from the Pacific area.

Churchill has ever been frank in his predictions. He told Britain, after the collapse of France, of the "blood and tears, toil and sweat" that had to come. He has never spoken with unwarranted optimism. Perhaps in that very fact lies a large part of his strength. He prepares his people for the worst. If it comes, they are not shocked, if it does not come so much the better.

Yet, while he warned of reverses that are apt to come, he told, on the whole, a reassuring story. He told of greater forces from the United States, coming to join the conflict for freedom. He told of United States fighter planes, coming to battle in the skies over Britain and Europe, side by side with the RAF. He told of coming United States bombers, to join in the all-out bombardment of Germany from the skies.

He said considerable reinforcements have already reached Singapore and Malay and told of reinforcements, arms and equipment going to Australia and New Zealand.

The over-all picture he painted is one of Allied forces, all over the world, including production forces as well as those in the combat lines, growing ever stronger. He did not say so, but there is the inevitable parallel thought that the forces of the Axis must be growing weaker. The losses sustained in Russia, the ships sunk and destroyed in the waters of the Pacific, cannot easily be replaced.

The forces of freedom are, implacably and steadily, gathering their strength for that day, sure to come, when the forces of aggression and of human slavery shall be blasted to destruction. That was the background of the report Winston Churchill made, yesterday, to parliament.

More Cotton Needed Soon

Cotton has reversed its unenviable position of several years ago, when over 13,000,000 bales surplus glutted the warehouses—with little hope of being reduced. Last season, for the first time in seventy-five years, domestic consumption practically equalled production.

It is predicted by leading cotton authorities, based on contracts for goods, that consumption at home during the current season will far outstrip production as presently planned. This is expected to bring about a substantial reduction in the warehouse surplus, which is now close to 2,000,000 bales less than the peak.

Smaller crops are to be expected in Russia and China, and other cotton-producing countries, because of widespread fighting in those lands, while the demand for more and more cotton throughout the world continues to grow.

The tremendous requirements for edible oils and fats under a war-time economy add further desirability to the need for cotton. During times of peace millions of gallons of edible oils are imported across the Pacific, via Japan. This supply has been cut off. It will be cut off indefinitely. It must be replaced at home by cottonseed, peanuts, soy beans and other oil-producing seeds, to the best of the nation's ability. The demand for oils and fats will grow, as the demand for cotton grows, and these demands must be met. Oils and fats and fiber are as important as metal in an all-out war effort.

The production of cottonseed oil, and other vegetable fats, need not retard this state's steady progress toward diversification. Indeed, the demand for all kinds of farm products, dairy products and meat—foods of all kinds—should speed diversification on its way, as never before.

If the war lasts several years, as now seems probable, the ever-growing demand for cotton at home will more than use up the present surplus, unless signs are misleading. This is to say nothing of a prospective world shortage when peace comes.

You Are Needed

Atlanta needs 30,000 volunteers to man the various branches of Civilian Defense. Since December 15 registration for this service has been under way at the headquarters, 246 Peachtree street. Recently this registration has been extended to the schools, where trained registrants are on duty daily.

Of the 30,000 required, to date 14,000 have volunteered their services. It is time the people of the city awoke to the importance of this duty they are called upon to perform and complete that registration of the 30,000.

The job to be done is the protection, if war through the air reaches us, of our own homes, our own blocks, our own communities. Atlanta lacks entirely the protection of defending, interceptor planes and there are no anti-aircraft guns here. Our sole defense will be, if enemy planes come, the blackout. The effectiveness of blackout depends entirely upon the advance training and the efficiency of the Civilian Defense personnel, those 30,000 needed for Atlanta.

It is a necessarily extended and complicated task, creating and training such an organization. To those who have registered, and to those who will register, therefore, there will be an unavoidable period of waiting. Each one will be assigned to the duty to which they are best suited, whether as air raid warden, auxiliary police or fireman, first aid workers, etc. As fast as possible each individual will be given training in one of these special branches. After registering, each must wait in patience to be called for this training, knowing that those in charge are working as hard and as fast as they can to complete the setup and the training.

This training will not be given during the regular working hours of the volunteer. It will be given in the normal hours of leisure, at night or at other hours to suit those with unusual work hours.

There will never be a call that will interfere with regular employment—unless it is the call that comes when enemy bombs are actually falling over our city. And then, in any event, regular employment will perforce be sidetracked for the emergency.

The uniform of a Civilian Defense volunteer consists solely of an armband which is furnished free by the government. Thus there need be no expense involved for the volunteer. It is "civilian" defense, hence it is but right the uniform should be the normal, everyday civilian clothing.

What is needed is volunteers from every block of homes, from every office building, every business or industrial establishment. For the work to be done, the duty to be performed must be done, if a raid comes, right where the volunteer lives or works. There can be no time lost in going to posts of duty. They must be right where you are.

The man who volunteers as an air raid warden will thus be responsible for the safety of his own family, his own children and his immediate neighbors. Which is as it should be.

This same fact makes it necessary that the 30,000 volunteers be recruited from every part of the city. So, if you have not yet registered, do so as promptly as possible. There may not be another suitable volunteer from your block, you know.

Then, having registered, wait patiently for the call to training, which will come just as soon as the directors of the program can use you.

Georgia Editors Say:

WORKERS FOR NATION
(From The Columbus Enquirer)
The Columbus public school system is playing a very important role in the nation's war program. Classes for skilled workers now are operating 24 hours a day for five days a week, but plans are being perfected to place them on a seven-day plan in order to turn out a steadily increasing number of skilled workers for defense projects. Courses in defense lines are being conducted under the supervision of the director of vocational education for the schools. They are being held at several local plants, the Opportunity school, the Occupational school, the Jordan Vocational High school and at the Spencer High school for Negroes. In addition to the civilians who are enrolled in these defense classes, Fort Benning soldiers are being taught how to keep and maintain Army equipment. This activity of the public school system is highly important as it is making a very definite contribution to this nation's war program.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

POLITICS, EVEN IN WAR WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—In considering the clamor being raised in congress for a more searching inquiry into the events at Pearl Harbor, it is well to remember that many of the people loudest in their efforts to lay the blame are the very ones who, prior to December 7, had insisted we had no cause to fear an attack in the Pacific.

Politics, it seems, will not down, even in war. Behind much of the new congressional storm whipped up by the Roberts report there is an unmistakable purpose, in some quarters, to make political capital out of the situation. An undercover campaign is already in progress to place the blame higher up than the naval and military commanders of the Hawaiian department.

Criticism is heard that our Pacific outposts of Hawaii and the Philippines were not greatly increased. The argument is made that if the administration, and particularly the War and Navy cabinet heads, had known for a week that there was danger of a Japanese attack, as the Roberts report showed, then measures should have been taken to build up much stronger defenses in the Pacific, both naval and military.

FAULT OF ISOLATIONISTS All of that may be true enough. But the thing not to be forgotten is that there was a strong antiwar and isolation element in the country. Various leaders of high and low station sought to make the country believe that we were in no danger of attack, either here or against our territorial possessions. Each move the administration made toward strengthening our bases was criticized—often vigorously opposed.

The case of Guam need only be cited. For three years or more the administration tried to get appropriations through congress for building a $50,000,000 defense program there. The measure was defeated. Too many people were afraid we would offend the Japs!

It comes with poor grace for these same people now to be voicing the complaint that we failed to take proper measures—the very ones who were strongest in their opposition to the administration foreign policy.

ONLY GREATER TARGET As a matter of fact, the circumstances of the attack—Japanese treachery plus our lack of alertness—make it apparent that stronger forces at Pearl Harbor or the Philippines would have changed the situation little, except perhaps for the worse. More forces would only have given the Japs a greater target.

Failure of Admiral Kimmel and General Short to take the precautions that reasonable men should have expected of the responsible authorities on the scene is one thing, but the fact that Hawaii and the Philippines were not more adequately prepared may be charged up to the whole country. We were reluctant to make the preparations that were necessary.

Gould Lincoln, seasoned commentator of the Washington Star, has aptly said that it was the political weight of this antiwar, isolationist sentiment that was largely responsible for our lack of preparations in the Pacific and elsewhere. As we now know, had been laying intensive preparations for this attack for at least a year—probably longer. She deceived us until the end with underhanded diplomacy.

ALL OF US TO BLAME In mitigation of the error of omission of which Admiral Kimmel and General Short have been found guilty by the investigation board, it should be pointed out that the entire country shared the belief that the Japs would never launch such a rash undertaking. Although precautionary warnings were sent out, actually the administration, from the President on down, believed the Japs were bluffing. Prime Minister Churchill thought so, also.

We didn't quite trust them, but somehow we had been lulled into the belief they would not make an overt act—not in the way it was done, anyway.

The crime of the Hawaiian commanders was not so much in making the same error of judgment, but in failing, as professional men, to take every precaution that the diagnosis called for. Ample war warning had been sent out by the War and Navy Departments in Washington. Even though they believed an air attack impossible, measures should have been taken to meet it. It was in this that they failed.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The W. C. T. U. Sets Example.

There are too many individuals, and groups, in the United States who apparently have even yet failed to realize this country is at war—and that it is a war which requires our 100 per cent effort.

That there is no time, no strength nor interest left for playing of politics or the championing of other causes.

It is, therefore, a high pleasure to speak a word of commendation here for an organization which, in the past, not infrequently raised our ire by its exaggerated statements and fantastic publicity handouts. Reference is made to the W. C. T. U.

From the national headquarters at Evanston, Ill., has come a page and a half of mimeographed publicity material that makes no reference whatever to the usual cause that organization champions, that has never a single word to say about the "demon rum," or the "damnation inherent in a bottle of beer." In other words, the Women's Temperance Union has at last become temperate.

The mimeographed sheet tells, instead, of a magnificent contribution the half-million membership of the W. C. T. U. is making to national defense. The members have adopted, as their special objective, the mobile blood bank units of the Red Cross. All members in the W. C. T. U. who can do so are asked to become blood donors for this blood bank, and to contribute all the money they can for the equipment and maintenance of these units. A fully equipped blood bank unit for use by the Red Cross costs $1,500. There is practically no limit to the number needed. And the Red Cross has issued an appeal for 200,000 healthy persons to give of their blood to meet the need of the men in the service. The W. C. T. U. will provide, from its own ranks, as many of these 200,000 blood donors as possible.

It Is Real Participation. Untold numbers of men wounded in action, or afflicted with disease while in the service, can be saved and restored to health and strength by a blood transfusion. Not so long ago it was necessary, to give such a blood transfusion, for the donor to lie beside the patient, on hospital cot, and for the blood to pass directly through a tube from the veins of one to the veins of the other.

Modern science, however, has made this unnecessary. Now, blood donors may give of their life fluid and it will be kept and stored indefinitely in blood plasma form, against the day when it will be needed. The various types of blood are sorted and all are represented in one of the Red Cross blood banks. Thus the surgeon, calling for transfusion, may always find the blood type to match that of his patient, in one of these banks.

And it seems to me it will be quite a satisfying realization to know, in your heart, that blood from your veins may, at any moment, be saving the life of some American boy, sorely wounded in conflict with the enemy on some distant field of battle.

You can give for the war, you know, at home. In money, in work, in sacrifice, in co-operation. And now the women of the W. C. T. U. have championed the one way by which folks who cannot serve in the armed forces, such as knitters or sewing be done. Members are also advised to enroll in the various training classes conducted by the Red Cross.

During World War I 90 per cent of the W. C. T. U. membership was enrolled in the Red Cross and 75 per cent worked in Red Cross shops and workrooms. The organization, in that earlier war, contributed $10,787 to purchase of Red Cross ambulances and $27,978 to purchase of field kitchens. If this effort is duplicated this time, it would buy for the Red Cross approximately 26 blood bank units.

The W. C. T. U. is going about its share of the task of winning the war in sane and intelligent fashion. It would be well if some other organizations, "causes" would act in similar manner.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Monday, January 29, 1917: (Special)—Grady county, Ga., claiming to have raised 80,000 hogs the past season and to have sold $800,000 worth.

And Fifty Years Ago. From the news columns of Friday, January 29, 1892:

"If Atlanta needs one thing just now more than all else, it is a building inspector. Not a board of building inspectors—for she has that now. But a practical man, with clear judgment, sound discretion and hard horse sense, who knows a thing when he sees it."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Joe Says Good-bye NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Joe called up to say good-bye and thanks for past patronage because he is going out of business at the end of the week. He said the gasoline and oil business just about paid his rent and the help, while the tires and accessories gave him his living. Now, already, some of the people are laying up their cars or using them so sparingly that they consume hardly any fuel and oil, so he has laid off the boys and is winding things up, anticipating that by next fall, at the latest, many another like him will chuck it. Anyway, Joe's simple but deadly estimate of his situation shows him that starting right now, or even two weeks ago, with no tires to sell, he is through.

Joe is no head to fret about big economic consequences. He isn't multiplying himself by some score-by-innings statistics representing all the other guys named Joe who run gas and service stations throughout the country and the drivers who deliver the fuel in the big trucks and the office help "way back yonder in the system by which fuel, oil, tires and all take shape from raw materials and travel to the service stations. It makes no never-mind to him that the advertising agencies which handled the copy for his goods are laying off help and that in the newspaper shops, with the decline of such lineage and revenue, there will be corresponding declines in the mechanical and advertising and editorial staffs.

He Isn't Selfish It isn't that he is selfish or intentionally indifferent. It is merely that he is just Joe, an individual, who has always assumed that these big, formless, soulless powers of commerce and industry were as reliable as the solar system. He doesn't know that his last name is legion. In fact, it isn't. It is Gross. Joe Gross, age 40, married, with two kids, a little home and a mortgage.

Joe isn't soldier stuff at the present stage of the war, at his age and with his dependents, so he is going to take one of those government courses and become a mechanic because the country around him is crowded with plants in which they are beginning to make war things. They are enlarging the vacuum cleaner factory down the line, but not to increase their vacuum cleaner capacity. Old, cold stacks which couldn't give a cigarette's worth of smoke for years and years are hot around the clock and at night the interiors are bright and men are working at machines.

Joe is no part of a machinist, all his years around a service station, but he knows the anatomy of the ordinary automobile engine and is handy enough with a wrench, so he figures he can learn to be a machinist. Anyway, that is the obvious thing to try and he might be pretty good at that. What he does not know is to become a headwaiter at the Waldorf, with his how's-tricks personality and those rough and grease-stained hands, or study for the opera with that newsboy voice?

Figured Right The gas company may try to find an optimist to take over the spot and struggle along, but it is a game that no man can win. Joe has figured out right. No tires, no margin to live on and the longer no tires the fewer the cars in action and the smaller the volume of sales of fuel and oil. Even the parking lot goes. Who is going to park what on no tires?

So probably the gas company will juggle nearly as much in pay out of taxes via the war-Relief contractor as he margined for himself on the tires. He probably will lend some of it back to the government for bonds because he is patriotic and wants to do his bit to make the world safe for his children.

The men who push the big tank trucks and the overland boxcars heavy with freight which rumble past Joe's place on the post road are in a fix, too, for the tankers must vanish when Joe quits business and the freighters, after all, roll on rubber, too. And then with families and some of them with mortgages, too.

Only a few years ago over in Munich a shrieking, shrewd man in a greasy raincoat, with an insane glare and a Chaplin moustache, was first beginning to squawk that he would rule the world or bring it down in ruins about him and Joe and all of us saw him in the movies and laughed and laughed.

Word Stories.

By W. Worthington Wells.

When Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes celebrated his 78th birthday one editorial writer said: "His opinions show that he reasons with the same COGENCY as ever."

COGENCY. A noun pronounced CO-gen-ey with the accent on the first syllable, which is like the (co) in Coca.

Cogeney is used when speaking of the quality or condition of being cogent. A cogent argument is one that appeals with force and conviction. Without conviction the argument may not be cogent. Chief Justice Hughes' opinions are forceful and convincing, thus cogent.

Cogent reasoning is that which is convincing. A person may be a great orator, but if he does not possess the ability to convince his audience, he should never be referred to as a cogent speaker.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

SHADE OF CHAMBERLAIN Winston Churchill's smashing victory in the house of commons debate was not unexpected.

His opposition alone hoped for an upset. That opposition does not yet realize how small it has become and how little it means in public opinion.

There exists in England a remnant of the old Neville Chamberlain crowd. Chamberlain, when he flew to Munich and sold out the Czechs, knew then how pitifully unprepared was England. He must have realized, bitterly, that those who had made him and those whom he represented were terribly wrong.

Chamberlain, in appealing Hitler until Hitler was ready to swallow England itself, represented a philosophy which was thrice defeated in this country in Mr. Roosevelt's three elections, but which stood in power in England until the dismal day when all seemed lost and they called on Winston Churchill to accept the ministry.

It must be remembered that the Chamberlain group had for years listened to Churchill flay them for their appeasement in Ethiopia, in Spain, and in the crises of Austria and of Czechoslovakia. He was just "old Winston," always arguing and always warning. Meanwhile, business was good and if only there wasn't this fellow Hitler there would be no fly in the ointment.

The group which Chamberlain symbolized had made betrayal after betrayal. The years after the signing of the Versailles treaty were years of shame, if one counts their minor betrayals. France charged she was betrayed in the navy pact which England signed. England and France both were outraged that Germany and Russia should sign a pact. That happened shortly after 1919. There were all sorts of secret treaties, pacts, and with them double-crossings. The evil flower of appeasement, at the cost of integrity, did not bloom quickly at Munich. It was fertilized by many a sordid and shady deal before it began to bear the bitter fruit.

AND EVEN NOW This group would even now make a separate peace and sell out their own people and the United States.

It was this group which took hold, on the bad news from Singapore and from Libya, and began a whispering campaign against Churchill.

(We in this country, are familiar with whispering campaigns.) The English have had a bad press agent from Libya. The successes there were exaggerated, splendid as they were. When the forces in Malaya were unable to halt the Japanese and when the German forces struck back in Libya, the old Chamberlain crowd began to whisper. News from Australia also was upsetting.

They charged that in the first World War Churchill had failed in Greece just as in this war he had failed at Crete and Greece. The truth is of course, that Churchill did recommend the forcing of the Dardanelles to open the "back door" for attack on Germany in the First World War. It failed, with tragic cost. Yet the further truth is that the Gallipoli campaign was something of a story of Pearl Harbor repeated over and over, of blunder after blunder. Churchill was not in charge of the execution of the plan. The idea was sound.

The still further truth is that Churchill was not called to office until all seemed lost. It now is no secret that England expected to fall within six weeks at the time Churchill was asked to become prime minister.

There was failure in Greece and Crete. Yet it was a costly failure and it loosed Germany on Russia five weeks later than Germany had planned. Those five weeks saved Moscow and Leningrad because they gave Moscow that much time and they brought the snow only a brief time before the Germans were at the gates. It may be history will write those campaigns were not failures.

PLACING THE BLAME Leadership in England was so indifferent toward preparedness that the labor government after the war was, not unnaturally, a pacific government. The prime ministers who followed were of the same stripe as Chamberlain. They represented the dominant thought.

We had much of the same thing in this country. We did not prepare. Indeed, our Navy was so neglected many men left it and the personnel and ships were at a low ebb. Our Army was never much in numbers and equipment.

To the very day of Pearl Harbor there was considerable strength in this country behind the assertion we would never be attacked; that this country was in no danger of aggression. To argue that strength was not considerable and able to muster great influence in congress is to ignore the facts.

It was reflected in the stupidity at Pearl Harbor, where brass-hat at its worst was produced by the wishful thinking of so many of our people.

Government always reflects the people.

It is not pleasant, but we must come back to that fact. In this country there still exists that little group, unable to believe how unimportant they are, who still think as do the appeasers of England; who still would sell out this war to protect their own selfish interests; who still haven't learned the lesson they need. But who will learn it.

Power and Skill Won't Make Him Champ If He Has a Weak Spirit

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Twenty-five years ago there lived in New York an inconspicuous young man who said nothing about his private affairs but spoke often and generously about the manifold merits of Britain and her fighting men. This alone was enough to make him seem the right sort, but as a further safeguard against suspicion, in case he said or did anything that seemed out of line, he "confessed" that he had once been confined in an asylum. People called him a harmless nut, and when the ship was far at sea the "minerals" exploded and tore the ship apart. Perhaps he had done the same thing before, and no one had survived to make a report; but this time a few members of the crew escaped to tell the story, and the young man was arrested and charged with murder.

A murderer he was, cold-blooded and merciless; but America was too soft to cope with desperate men, and he contrived to escape while awaiting trial.

He was an enemy agent, shrewd, cunning, cruel, and more deadly than a rattlesnake. But when the war ended, the charge against him was dropped and he was free to go his way. It was equivalent to giving him license to prey on America.

Nobody knows what that softness cost our country. But this much is certain. The minor agent of the First World War developed into the chief of German spies in preparation for the present war, and he directed the work of Hitler's spies and saboteurs until the FBI got him convicted and sent to prison a few weeks ago.

Softness in times like this can be as dangerous as treason itself. England's leaders are rejoicing because they have at last developed in Africa the kind of army they longed for—a tough, lean, hard-bitten army, tricky as a fox, deadly as a slashing wolf, and utterly ruthless and terrible in action.

That is the pattern for America and for victory. It is not enough to overcome muscle softness. Mind and heart and spirit must be rawhide tough and as coldly merciless as war itself. The Japs toughen new soldiers by making them bayonet helpless Chinese prisoners tied to stakes. We must toughen ourselves by remembering that we are fighting for our lives against savages who show no mercy to the conquered. It is kill or be killed.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Will you wire England and see if they found a leather tobacco pouch in an old brown sweater?"

Dudley Glass

There has been a lot of talk, pro and con, about our new soldiers—their food, their clothing, their treatment by the residents of the towns where they spend their off hours. On the whole there have been few complaints. Of course, the chronic grouches will always be with us.

However, it is refreshing to read a letter from an Atlanta young man to his mother. He is Private L. D. Rauschenberg, son of Mrs. L. D. Rauschenberg, connected with the Fulton county sheriff's office.

Young Rauschenberg, it appears, can take it and like it. He is not permitted to identify his location—except that it is in "continental United States." As for the weather report, that is two weeks old now, and doesn't matter. Maybe it's clear and the moon shining brightly. We were carried immediately upon arrival to the barracks and they were warm and comfortable.

"This is called a Quartermaster's Replacement Center, they have schools here for the various phases of Q. M. work and after eight weeks intensive training we are sent to camps like Fort Benning.

"We roll out at 4:30 a. m. and are kept very busy until about 6 p. m. at which time we have supper, lights go out at 9 o'clock and you are mighty glad that they do.

"The work is intensive because they have condensed 13 weeks into 8 weeks, so you see I won't be here so long. One company is leaving for Alaska, one for the West Indies and one for New Orleans, so you never know.

"We have classes in the a. m. starting at 8:20 and lasting until 11:45, then lunch at 12, drilling from 1 to 4; from 4 to 6 we have lectures on military tactics. The morning classes are on accounting, motor maintenance, etc. I am in what they call "storage and issue," which includes accounting, the Army way.

"The weather has turned warm, the snow and ice melt a little during the day but freezes again at night. Yesterday I was on a detail that had to pick and shovel the ice out of the street gutter so the melting water could flow.

"It is a hard life but they are getting us in shape, they say that this is the hardest part, from 4:30 a. m. until 7 p. m. is long and hard but we get enough sleep and lots of good food so it is really good for us. I am feeling great.

"The spirit is wonderful (there are 19,000 men here), and they all seem to feel that they have been accorded a special favor to be able to serve in this way. I have not smelled any liquor since I went in at Fort McPherson. They just do not allow any alcohol around.

"Sunday I was on K. P. duty, it is hard work, but like a lot of other things, if you look long enough, you can find interesting, amusing and enlightening things.

"Our uniforms are made of nice serge-like material and fit very well. They also furnish us a lumber jacket that turns water and wind, it has a heavy wool lining and is quite warm, we have heavy overshoes about 12 inches high, leggings and an arctic cap that comes well over the face and ears—not much to look at but warm and serviceable. We have three pairs of gloves, work ones, wool ones and leather ones for dress, we have two pairs of shoes, three pair of wool socks and three pair of lisle ones, of course these are all O. D. colored.

"There is nothing cheap in any part of our equipment. The Army does some seemingly peculiar things but there is a reason and a very good one for every thing.

"Do not think for a moment that the U. S. A. does not have military men that are second to none, you can talk about your 'Vons' of Prussia, but our men are taught to be more self-reliant than any army in the world, they are a fine considerate bunch, and it is a joy to be trained by them.

"The money that I am receiving is ample, we are well taken care of and I have never eaten at a hotel in Atlanta that had better food as we are allowed to have just as much as we want but they stress not to waste a crumb.

"Please do not worry about me; they have everything here for our comfort and I assure you that we are being well taken care of.

"All my love.

"LOUIE."

Jungle Rubber

Why worry so much over getting synthetic rubber. Into mass production when Brazil is full of real rubber, asks Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister. Dr. Aranha, in a radio talk, quoted the price of synthetic rubber at 30 cents.

"There are 20,000 rubber trees in the jungle," he said. "Pay our natives 60 cents and they'll risk the jungle hazards to get it out. But not at 30 cents."

He told the State Department that South America can supply everything the United States has been buying from Asia and Africa, including tin, cocoa and coffee.

It is a pity that much-talked about railway and highway through Mexico and Central America and on to Brazil and Argentina is still a mere dream. We could use it now.

Franklin J. Horne, of Sea Island Beach, has bought and presented to the city of Brunswick 19 sirens for use in air raid warnings. They will be installed all over town, and as each is said to have a half-mile range even the sleepiest of Brunswickians is going to wake up when they cut loose simultaneously.

2 Smallpox Cases Reported in State

Two cases of smallpox were reported in Georgia yesterday, one in Bibb county and one in Fitzgerald. The case in Bibb county was the first there in 13 years and it was the first in Fitzgerald in 20 years.

Dr. Lester M. Petrie, of the division of preventable disease of the State Health Department, said yesterday the Bibb county case was the first to be reported in the state this year. The Fitzgerald case, he added, had not been reported.

Dr. Petrie said there were no cases in Fulton county. The last cases in Atlanta, he said, were 10 reported in 1938 and there were 11 cases in the state last year.

The White House said Long was "particularly interested in getting Grew home."

DEFENSE ACT SIGNED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(P)—President Roosevelt approved today a act authorizing a $100,000,000 Civilian Defense fund with which OGD Director Fiorello H. ## BLAMES ISOLATIONISTS ABOUT PEARL HARBOR

Editor Constitution: Just to keep the record straight.

The Wheeler Lindbergh, Nye, Wood, et al. poison gas attack is responsible for the Pearl Harbor situation. If these men were honest they would own that this is true. But they won't. They are too busy throwing blame on others, and storing up new gas to sabotage the peace when it comes.

Brass hats are as subject to gas attacks as labor and the rest of the people. Too few people went unaffected by the poison gas of the isolationists.

Let us keep the record straight and be on guard. Stupidity is always paid for. Not always by those who should. The Philippines writhe in agony.

KEEPING PHYSICALLY FIT.

Lieutenant Commander Gene Tunney has an article in the February issue of The Reader's Digest that everyone should read, and most of us adopt as a daily routine of simple but effective exercise by which we can keep physically fit.

It is easier said than done, but we should be willing to do what Gene Tunney suggests if we mean what we say in wanting to be at our very best for the duration.

"Physical flabbiness has always seemed to me a criminal even sacrilegious abuse of that wonderful instrument, the human body," begins Mr. Tunney. "Ever since boyhood I've made a religion of keeping in shape by regular, conscientious exercise. Adhering to a high ideal of stamina and endurance has paid me dividends not only in the prize ring but in the almost equally grueling struggle of everyday life. To enjoy the glow of good health, you must exercise."

And then he plunges into a routine of exercise which may be taken in your bed room for 15 minutes every morning before breakfast, which he says he will guarantee to produce the increased physical buoyancy and mental vigor that are so necessary in these times. "Perform them faithfully and you can take puffy inches off your waistline, recondition unused muscles, feel better, work harder, and live longer," says Mr. Tunney. "What are these exercises? Pretty much the same ones you already know about, but which, perhaps, you have not followed. There are six of these exercises suggested and illustrated in the February Reader's Digest."

No. 1: Raise arms to front and above head, inhaling deeply. Lower arms, keeping them stiff and straight, until hands touch knees, head dropped until chin touches collarbone. Bend at diaphragm, not at waist. Draw stomach up. As hands touch knees, exhale. Do 20 times.

No. 2: Clasp hands behind head, heels five inches apart. With diaphragm drawn up and shoulder muscles relaxed, swing upper body in circle, ending at original position. Exhale on way down, inhale on way up. Circle to left 10 times, then to right 10 times.

No. 3: Extend arms sideways at shoulder level. Drop right hand 10 inches, raise left 10 inches. Draw stomach up, holding hips stationary. Swing hands behind and down, etc. Do 20 times. No. 4 is the old one about standing with the heels 15 inches apart, rising on toes and reaching hands overhead, inhaling as you go up, exhaling as you come down. Do 20 times.

No. 5 is chest expansion, moving arms straight to front from chest, and back and forth six times, holding breath. Do this six times. And No. 6 is the one where you cross your hands, slowly raising arms in semicircle to front and overhead, rising on toes and inhaling steadily. Do six times vigorously.

Mr. Tunney goes on to show what this regular, daily exercise will do for you—take off excess fat, which taxes your heart and makes you sluggish; increase your lung capacity, which means more oxygen, the only source of animal energy, and so forth. We will all agree that he is correct in his theory. The question is, Will we do it? I am trying, every morning.

Hurley Is Named Zealand Minister

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(P)—The nomination of Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war in the Hoover administration, to be minister to New Zealand, was submitted to the senate today by President Roosevelt.

It was assumed that Hurley already had reached his post, since the White House had announced that the nomination was being withheld until he was safe in New Zealand.

He entered law practice in Washington after leaving the cabinet in 1933. He served in the World War in France and had been a reserve colonel. A few days ago, however, the President sent to the senate for confirmation his promotion to be an active brigadier general in the Army.

Capital Hears F. D. R. To Sign Price Measure

President Is Expected To Denounce Bill for Its Limitations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was reported authoritatively today to have decided to approve the much amended price control bill and at the same time issue a strong statement saying it does not go far enough in its intended control of war-time inflation.

Well-informed sources said that Mr. Roosevelt had no choice but to sign the measure, even though it differed materially from the legislation he recommended to Congress last July.

They said the President probably would suggest that the restrictions placed around farm price ceilings might hamper the whole price control program. The legislation, on which the Senate completed a congressional action yesterday, would forbid the fixing of price ceilings on agricultural products below some of the highest levels in history.

Biddle, attorney general of the United States; Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture of the United States; Congressman Lewis C. Rabaut, of Michigan, and (in the light hat) Grover B. Hill, of Texas, assistant secretary of agriculture. Biddle visited the Federal Penitentiary and Wickard addressed farm leaders.

Great Southland Is Advised To Gear Up Its Agriculture

Duke Meeker, assistant director of the Office of Agricultural Defense Relations, and Frederick Waugh, assistant director of the Agricultural Marketing Administration, while Sherman Johnson, head of the division of farm management of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, outlined the stepped-up program for the farmers of the section and the nation.

Wickard Confident. Blue as the difficulties look now, Wickard declared he was confident that the farmers will come through, and for them he predicted more money than they have had in many a long year. Last year the farm income amounted to $11,000,000,000—and this year, 1942, it looks as though that income will climb on up to the $13,000,000,000 mark, he said.

But, it's going to do it on parity prices, or prices in that vicinity (parity prices being worked out on a basis of purchase power of farm products in the years 1909 to 1914), because the secretary sees that limit as fair to farmer and consumer.

"Let me state as simply as I can my attitude on this price question," said the secretary to whom has been given the "yes and no" power on farm prices by Congress.

"I want farmers to have parity. I am directed by law to obtain, insofar as I am able, parity for agriculture. I am going to do all in my power to keep prices up to parity. I am going to do all in my power to keep them from going much beyond parity."

Points Out Danger. He pointed to the dangers of inflation if prices rise much above that figure and added "we will have to accept ceilings and rationing" if prices climb too high.

In a press conference, the secretary later declared he foresaw no trouble in working out prices with Leon Henderson, the administrator, to whom has been given the job of controlling costs.

"Whatever comes up, we can work out a solution," he asserted. The secretary made an urgent appeal to farmers to invest their increased income in United States defense bonds, both as a means of saving and helping the war effort and as a means of curbing inflation.

Comments on Sugar. As to the matter of food shortages now, the secretary was asked about the sugar situation—shortages in which he referred to in a nation-wide broadcast with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt 10 days ago. Didn't his statement cause a wave of buying by sugar hoarders, as commonly talked here?

"People everywhere were already buying sugar and rationing had already begun in many cities," he asserted, disclaiming that his statements caused the rush on sugar. After his broadcast, "when the people went to buy sugar they found none was there," he added. Henderson has announced sugar rationing will begin soon.

In his speech yesterday, which was broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour program, Wickard urged maximum production of peanuts and soybeans specifically because of their oil-bearing qualities. "All we can produce" is the amount sought.

Urges Gardens. Secretary Wickard called upon the south for a balanced farm program, achievement of the "live-at-home" ideals and hoped for "a garden for every home in the south."

Sherman Johnson called the figures for the increased farm production program. An 8 per cent increase in dairy products is needed, in Georgia 9 per cent; a national increase of 13 per cent in eggs is vital—in Georgia the per cent is 16; 5,000,000 acres should be put in peanuts this year—in Georgia, 1,376,000 acres needed as compared with an estimated 670,-

000 in 1941. And so through the gamut of farm produce—step it up, work harder and longer, make everything count and conserve vital materials—so ran the talk of Johnson and Meeker and Waugh.

Labor Shortage Seen. Meeker predicted shortages in labor because of the war—get old men, get women, get school students, he said. He showed shortages in all the materials needed for war, and suggested conservation and substitutes. "Fertilizer will come in paper bags now, because cotton is needed by the Army, because burlap can't be obtained," said he.

And Waugh called for better marketing facilities, better packaging and grading of products. Cut out useless trips by farm trucks, he said. "Don't send a truck on a bicycle job," he advised. Agricultural war board members today are to report on progress already made in the 16 states in the southeast. Wickard will be here through the day. Gordon B. Hill, of Texas, assistant secretary of agriculture, also is here.

U. S. Is Fighting On All Fronts, Knox Asserts

Can't Take on Enemies One at a Time, Navy Secretary Says.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Navy Secretary Knox asserted today that the Navy was carrying out an unprecedented task on a global scale with a grim determination to "fight and win this war on all oceans and upon all fronts."

He stated the United States could not concentrate on defeating Hitler alone, but must conquer the Japanese, too.

Knox told members of the Chicago Association of Commerce that the Navy's assignment was immense, but that it "is doing the job" and reported that the sea lanes to Britain were open while "material and men are moving to the hard pressed fronts in the south Pacific."

In citing the need for certain secrecy, he related a study of Axis radio broadcasts "indicates that the Japanese are jittery because they can't determine just where the American fleet is and what its objectives may be." "I have been criticized recently for suggesting that Hitler is our great enemy," the secretary said. "But some people evidently misunderstood me and I want to be emphatically clear."

"The war in the Pacific, the war in the Atlantic, the war in China, in Malaysia, in Russia, in Libya—they are all one war. Hitler wants us to throw all our growing strength into the Pacific, to stop supplying the British and Russians. But this is what we propose not to do. We will not fall into Hitler's trap."

Florence Hewlett Dendy Joins Ranks of Lady Lawyers

By SALLY FORTH.

FOUR YEARS AGO Florence Hewlett Dendy decided she wanted to study law and enrolled in the Woodrow Wilson Law College. She kept her head buried in law books and learned all there is to know about the subject. Florence inherited her legal tendency from her father, Samuel D. Hewlett, a leading Atlanta lawyer.

Last week Florence was admitted to the Atlanta Bar Association, along with Hughes Spalding Jr. Such distinguished men as F. M. Bird, president of the Bar Association; Judge A. L. Etheridge, of Fulton county superior court; R. S. Sams, chairman of the committee, attended the party given.

The "lady lawyer" and Hughes at the Ansley hotel. Florence is very enthusiastic about engaging in the practice of her profession with Benjamin T. Beasley Jr., who graduated in her law class and was admitted to the bar at the same time that she passed her examination. Mr. Beasley is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. Beasley.

Florence is the brilliant eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hewlett and the sister of Sarah Hewlett Ellis, Amelia Hewlett Perkinson, Dolly Hewlett and Samuel D. Hewlett Jr. Her brother hopes to follow in the footsteps of his father and sister, after he finishes his education at Marion Institute in Marion, Ala.

The Red Cross is calling for volunteers to teach or to assist with the nutrition program. If you are a college graduate with a major in home economics, regardless of the date, volunteer today. If you are doing defense work that can be done by someone else, ask to be relieved and volunteer for the service you are best fitted for and where you are needed most. Call Mrs. Turner E. Smith, Hemlock 0336, volunteer in charge of nutrition teaching.

HE IS GOING to be married. He has already "popped the question" to his future bride, who lives in another city, and the announcement of their betrothal will be made very soon.

The groom-elect has been a favorite in the stag line ever since dancing school days at Margaret Bryan's. He attended North Fulton High school, was a member of T. K. O. fraternity, and finished his education at Tech.

He is a tall, brunet, and speaks with a low and husky drawl. Do you know his name?

LAURA SHALENBERGER won the second highest honor average at Webber College, which was founded by Mrs. Roger Babson in Babson Park, Fla. A college wherein women glean a business and financial education, it had its beginning in New England, but students were taken to Florida for the winter months. Finding that the health of students was better in Florida, the college was transferred to Babson Park for the full term.

Laura is the talented daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger, and it is gratifying to hear that she is keeping up her music. She is a gifted pianist and will give concerts at an early date at the Lake Wales Club and at Mountain Lake. Her friends enjoyed her all-too-short visit to her parents in December, and look forward to seeing her when the summer vacation rolls around. During the past five years Laura has been enrolled at distant educational institutions, but her friends have lost none of their interest in this attractive Atlanta.

A "ROMPING" good time was had by the babies who attended the party at which Nancy Schwab (Mrs. Britt) Pendergrast was hostess recently at her home on Putnam circle. The party honored Nancy's four-month-old daughter, Jill Gray, and assembled a group of the hostess' close friends and their adorable offspring.

Invited were Elizabeth Colley (Mrs. Charles) Shelton and her bouncing baby son, Charles; Judy (Mrs. Henry) Michael and her infant daughter, Judy; Frances Mercer (Mrs. Richard) deGolan and her six-month-old son, "Rick," and Helen Rathbone (Mrs. Felix) deGolan and the latter's baby son, Felix, who is two months old. Dorothy Dean (Mrs. William) Mason brought her two-year-old son, Billy, whose only companion near his age was little Gina Kiser, small daughter of the Gordon Kiser Jr.

Elaine Dickey (Mrs. Winfield) Jones had to leave her baby son, Winfield, at home since, at that time, he was receiving medical attention.

Judy Michael was candid cameraman for the party, and snapped a number of captivating pictures of all the babies piled together on the sofa and cooing at each other. Since the honor guests were too small to enjoy refreshments, the mothers were served tea and spice cakes! Needless to say, the party was a great success!

Women To Work in More Practical Footwear; The Frivolous Shoes Come Out After Dark

By Winifred Ware.

"Women's shoes will grow more practical day by day, and more frivolous after dark as the war goes on," says Seymour Troy, famous shoe designer, in predicting the effect of the world crisis on women's footwear. He sees no lessening of interest in things fashionable and pretty. Instead, says he, when we have settled down in earnest to what many think will be a long war, women will appreciate more than ever what other countries have found to be true—that life for those left at home must go on and it must be made as cheerful as possible. "By this I do not mean that we should be or will be indifferent to the gravity of the situation we are in or to the importance of doing everything we can as groups and individuals toward winning the war. I simply recognize a psychological truth when I say that, no matter what conditions exist about her, a woman will strive to look her prettiest; she will take whatever there is at hand, and she will make something attractive out of it. It may be a poor substitute for the thing she is used to, but that never deters a woman in her effort to beautify herself. There will be shortages and there will be substitutes, but there will be enough things available to keep American women pretty and attractive."

"About shoes, specifically," Mr. Troy answered, "shoes for daytime wear will be casual and comfortable. They will be adapted to woman's life, which will be more active; she will walk more and stand more. Therefore, shoes will give her more support; there will be more lower heels, more leathers built for wear. I do not mean that these functional shoes will be unattractive, or of the 'health' type. Comfortable shoes can and will be interesting and beautiful in design; they will have pretty stitching and bows and there will be some hand-tooled leather designs. Shoes for after-dark occasions will run to the opposite extreme and will be gay, bright, even fantastic, in an effort to make us forget for a few brief hours the cares and responsibilities of the day. There will be lots of color," he said. And to illustrate the point, he showed me an evening slipper of his own design, made of many bright colors. It would be stunning worn with white or almost anything. Another was made of a bright printed material draped across the toe. Several had jeweled ornaments.

I found sufficient proof to satisfy myself that comfortable shoes can be as beautiful as any, by trying on many of the low and moderately low-heeled unusual designs which Mr. Troy is currently showing.

For Your Defense Uniform You'll Need a Military Figure

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you are to wear your defense uniform with requisite dash, you'll have to acquire a military figure. It's broad shoulders you want—waistline and hips should be trim and slim.

But the way you look isn't nearly as important as the way you feel, and the small amount of regular exercise needed to keep your muscles elastic and your fingers firm will also keep you feeling fit and alive.

A daily half-dozen will do the trick. You perhaps need a couple to nip in the waist, a couple more to counteract the pull of gravity and tone the muscular girdle, and a pair of streamliners for the hips. Here is a sample trio—and these exercises will put you back in shape in short order, but they are not intended for beginners or fannies.

To Supple the Waist.

Position: Stand on one knee with other leg stretched out at sides, arms stretched overhead, and hands grasping a wand near each end.

Movement: Stretch up, then bend to alternate sides, touching end of wand to the floor. Repeat with position of legs reversed. It's a difficult stretch, but it's streamlining. Repeat over six times, then work up to 12.

To Tone the Midriff.

Position: Lying on back on the floor, legs straight down, arms upstretched on floor overhead.

Movement: Slowly come up to sitting position, arms outstretched and bending over touch hands to toes. Then slowly lower backwards to starting position. Five times for that exercise, gradually increase to 10.

To Slim the Hips.

Position: Lying on left side on the floor, right hand on floor in front for support, legs stretched down.

Movement: Make wide circles with the top leg, swinging the leg from the hip socket. Circle six times in one direction, relax, then circle six times in the opposite direction. Relax. Change sides and repeat with the other leg.

The leaflet, "Business Girls' Daily Half-Dozen" contains the type of exercises most figures need. The exercises are illustrated. Send stamped addressed envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Suggestions For Ease In Speaking

Public speaking can be such a wretched ordeal. You don't know much about it. You wait your turn with knees trembling—sure you'll never do as well as the speaker before you.

Perhaps you could even do better! The skill she may have taken years to acquire, you could quickly learn with home lessons.

One trouble with people who aren't used to speaking—they try too hard. They become stiff and sedate, they use "fancy" language. The best way to impress is to be perfectly natural. You can.

Walk to your place at a normal pace. Carry yourself erect, but not strained or tense. If you begin with a friendly smile, the audience will quickly warm to you.

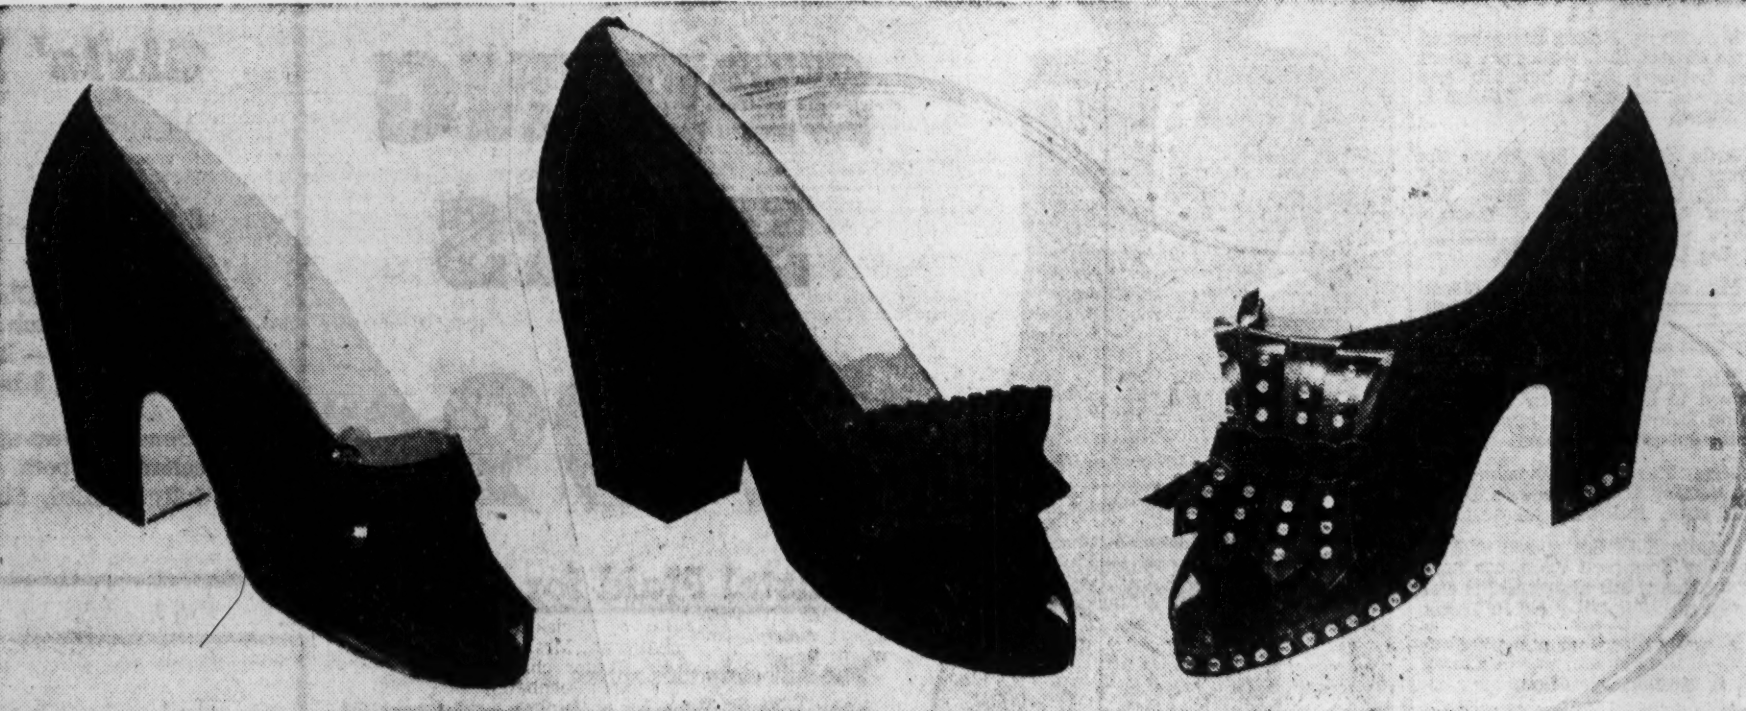

Elaborate phraseology—"we were admitted to his presence by a simple 'he saw us'—puts your listeners to sleep. Getting in friendly words like "you and I" and "we" brings them closer to you.

Your voice won't get tired or strained, if you breathe deeply from the diaphragm and keep jaw muscles relaxed.

Send 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, "SELF-INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING," to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

A polished leather is one of the popular shades of light brown is used to make this pump. On the heel the leather is placed in narrow overlapping layers. An unusual bow-like ornament is placed on the toe. This pump is an example of trim achieved by the use of self material.

This pump is made of black polished leather; the heel is moderate and squarish. A narrow strap crosses the vamp and fastens at the side with a small buckle.

Of black patent, this dressy pump has grosgrain trim. A band of grosgrain goes around the vamp and folds of grosgrain make the attractive bow.

This sturdy shoe has details that keep it from looking like it was made for comfort. Of black leather, it is trimmed with nailheads and fringed kiltier-tongue.

Newer Styles Designed By Seymour Troy

Artists always have been recognized as highly individual and the means they use to bring ideas into form may be individual, too. Seymour Troy, a famous shoe designer, instead of merely drawing a design on paper, makes the shoe in color and with actual materials to the minutest detail, on a piece of cardboard. Mr. Troy is seen in the photograph with several of his designs made up in this way.

Jack Benny's Movie Appearances Become as Important as Radio

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28.—(INS) Jack Benny's career as a movie star is becoming almost as important in his life as his air program. He usually makes one picture a year and let's it go at that. But he will make three this year—two for Warners. "George Washington Slept Here," the George Kaufman-Moss Hart play, follows "The Widow Wouldn't Weep," and of course, then Jack has "To Be or Not To Be," Carole Lombard's last picture.

Jerry Wald and Jack Saper are assigned to produce "George Washington Slept Here" and it will be made in the late spring. Mary Benny, who has been very sick for the last few days, having fainted after she finished her radio program Sunday night, is reported better. Mary is suffering from sinus trouble.

H. G. Wells, who has always had his tongue in his cheek where movies are concerned, will forget his feeling long enough to adapt his own story, "The History of Mr. Polly," for Charles Laughton. Wells and Laughton discussed "Mr. Polly" for three years and I have an idea when Wells finishes his version it will be much more Laughton than Mr. Polly. Now that we have George Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells doing movie stuff, it wouldn't surprise me if that other "holdout," Katherine Cornell, breaks down and accepts one of the million offers made her.

Amusing that Hollywood actors and actresses hope they'll be put on the Harvard Lampoon's annual "Worst List." Every time an actress or actor gets publicized by these boys it is lucky for that person. Ann Sheridan was one of the gals they lampooned the most, and when you see her in "King's Row" you'll realize she has come a long way as an actress. Gene Tierney was last year's choice and 1941 was Gene's biggest year. "Honky Tonk," which they mentioned among the 10 worst pictures, was one of M-G-M's biggest money-makers.

Points for Parents

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Daughter: "You let me stay up later when grandpa was here."

Mother: "That was because he comes so seldom. The radio is different. You can hear good programs early in the evening."

Daughter: "Please let me stay up and hear this next program."

Mother: "Oh, all right. You can just this once, but don't ever ask to stay up and hear it again, will you?"

Exceptions to a child's routine may be made for things which happen only occasionally but not for those which happen regularly.

MY DAY: The Responsibilities Of Civilian Life

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Tuesday.—In spite of rather gray-looking skies, I left Washington yesterday afternoon, hoping to land in New York about 6:45. But we came down at an unfamiliar airport, and found we were in Philadelphia and the flight was cancelled. I drove to the station and caught a train almost immediately and reached my house at 9:15, so I might just as well have taken a 5 o'clock train out of Washington.

I talked to some Army boys on the way over, who had just had their orders. One youngster in a sailor's uniform sat just a few seats ahead of me. When he turned around, I felt sure he must have added a few years to his age, for he looked 14 instead of 18. They tell me that the boys coming over here from England to get their training in flying are very young, ranging from 16 to 20. Some of our own pilots are 20 to 22. It is a curious thing to me that older people seem so often to accept with complacency these young armies. I rebel, and yet I know an Army must be young.

I have a great desire to see our fighting forces organized in the most efficient possible way, by putting each individual in the place where he will serve best, because only in that way shall we shorten the horrible period through which we are living. I want to see everyone in civilian life at the present time doing the job he is best able to do, and doing it as well as he possibly can.

All of us know that, at the end of this war, that other war has to be fought, and we shall need youth to fight it. I hope that, in every factory today, and in every service camp, young people are discussing the kind of a world they intend to build after the fighting is over.

It may not be the kind of a world in which my generation has lived, but if it achieves the ends for which we are fighting—real freedom for every individual regardless of race, creed or color, economic freedom for every individual who is willing to put his capacities to work of some kind—then these horrible days will have obtained good results. We have to live through them and I accept the necessity, but at the same time I hope we do our share in civilian life to prepare for a different and better future world.

Marriage Is No Cure for "Bossy" Girl

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I have been engaged to a girl for over a year and we planned to be married within the next two months. When we became engaged I thought she was the grandest person in the world and I loved her dearly. Since we planned to marry she has changed entirely. She bosses me, telling me what I can do and what I can't. Her whole manner has changed and she is not the girl I fell in love with last year. The latest thing she has done is to call my boss and ask him if I could have a raise, for after we are married she does not think we can get along on the small salary I now make. I did not know anything about her call until just recently when the boss called me in and told me it would be impossible to give me more now but later on, if I were not called into the army, that perhaps he could manage a raise. You can imagine how terrible I felt when he told me that, for I did not know anything about it. I have stayed away from my girl for about 10 days on the excuse of illness, because I have been trying to figure out in my own mind what to do. I feel now that I do not love her as much as I did, and I am wondering if I should go through with this marriage. The prospect for the future does not look so bright. What do you think?

CASEY AT THE BAT. I think you are being very wise to look into this situation before you go any farther, and I agree with you that the situation does not look very promising. This girl is showing her true character now, because, in plain English she has "hooked" you. I think she showed extreme impudence in calling your office about your salary, and I think that point alone should make you see what type of person she is. If your love is cooling, my suggestion would be to stop making plans for the wedding until you are more sure about her.

She is the type of person who will always want to run other people's affairs and it will take something drastic to make her change. Better go slow on the marriage plans unless she has made them. Then you will have to do one of three things: Tell her you do not love her and cannot go on with the wedding; second, go on with the marriage and hope for the best in that you can change her after the marriage, and third, postpone the wedding with a variety of excuses and let your affections cool so, that she will break the engagement.

RE INCONSPICUOUS IN REFUSING FOOD Dear Dixie: When out at a party do you think it good taste to refuse a dish because you do not like it? Should I tell the hostess I do not like it, or just refuse? Some friends of mine serve wine at dinner all the time. I do not drink wine, and I see no reason to have it served to me. What can I do?

MABLE. It is always good taste to refuse a dish if you do not care for it, if you can do it without making the refusal too obvious and conspicuous. Let the servant offer you the dish, and just say "no thank you" and let it go at that.

Gill in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Pro Football Professional football never has seriously invaded the south, and the threat of it is now a long time removed. In fact, pro football in the north may have a difficult time surviving in times of war.

There are two prime reasons for war crippling the play-for-pay sport to the point where they may call the whole thing off for the duration.

First of all, graduating college seniors will not be, in most cases, available for a professional football career. They'll likely be called into the service.

In the second place, Ace Parker sounded an alarming keynote as he announced he was going to enlist in the Navy and that his professional football days were over.

Parker predicted that war is going to mean the end of professional football. "Most of the players are from 20 to 30, which is the right age, and 85 per cent of them are single," he said.

The game has become quite the thing in places like Washington, New York and Chicago. Folks who never went to college have adopted the Bears, Redskins, et al., as their alma mammy. They're sub-way cheer leaders. Smart operators have supplied them with colors, pennants, etc.

It might go on indefinitely, but necessarily it is a game that must be played with players, and unless there is a brisk change along the international front, pro ball's outlook wears a slightly purple tinge.

No Fooling The Original Celtics have supplied the answer as to whether or not a professional basketball team will ease up against another professional opponent for the sake of a better attraction or, to be more concise, the almighty dollar.

There will not be a return engagement because there was no opening left for one. The Celtics seemed rather proud of their reputation as a drawing card in Atlanta because they showed the younger Detroit Eagles absolutely no mercy.

Had they been gunning for another attraction they could have staged a bit of "hippodrome," perhaps. They could have put on a show. But it was strictly business. Clowning was left to those show people who make a living out of it, and the Celtics proceeded full speed ahead. And no punches pulled.

Toward the end, after giving the ex-collegians of Dutch Dehnert pitiless physical buffeting, they had matters so much in hand the world champions were beginning to take on an amateurish tinge.

The Celtics have allowed amateur teams to finish a lot closer to them than the nine points that decided their game with the Eagles. But they beat Dehnert's outfit about as decisively as they could on that night.

And the many Georgians who saw the game are satisfied that the Celtics are past masters in the art of wearing a team down and then proceeding leisurely to the kill.

The Eagles are a better team than they appeared against the Celtics, because they have beaten Banks and company, the Renaissance and other powers this season. They couldn't get their floor shots in the basket, which is the basic principle of the game.

In Short It probably hasn't occurred to people wondering about the future of athletic events that the Navy and Army are going ahead with plans for a full season in football in 1942.

It is suggested that if any figures other than the heroes of the game are voted into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown that the choice be limited to Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who has guarded the game's sanctity so magnificently. The suggestion seems well put.

A couple of real optimists are Manager Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foss, of the Red Sox. They are looking for Ted Williams to come back from the Army just as good as when he departed with a batting average of .406.

All of us in sports are going to miss the cheery greetings of Sheriff Mott Aldredge at various athletic gatherings. In his passing the Crackers lost an ardent booster.

McCOY IN A-1.
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Benny McCoy, Philadelphia Athletics' second baseman, has been reclassified 1-A by Kent county selective service board 2.

Dolph Camilli Upsets Plans Of MacPhail

All Dodgers Except Ace Willing To Discuss Salary Terms.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Apparently the only player of the Brooklyn Dodgers who is not rushing to answer the club's invitation to come here and discuss his contract is Dolph Camilli, the man President Larry MacPhail would most like to hear from.

About everyone except the National League's most valuable player has contacted the club since letters were sent last week asking some of the highest salaried stars to come to Brooklyn at the club's expense.

Billy Herman wired today that he would come here this weekend for the New York baseball writers' dinner, and Whitlow Wyatt telephoned that he would come up from his Georgia farm within a few days. Previously Peg Wee Reese had accepted and Mickey Owen had written he couldn't make the trip because of his wife's illness and that he would be easy to satisfy anyway.

Fred Fitzsimmons and Dixie Walker stayed here during the winter and were not given letters. Arky Vaughan left California before his letter was delivered and now is en route to Florida by auto, and Joe Medwick is expected to arrive here this week in the company of Manager Leo Durocher.

But Camilli still is as silent as a sphinx at his ranch in California. He was believed to have been paid $15,000 and to want a considerable increase this season.

Tom Tatum Signs Dodger Contract

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 28.—Tommy Tatum, rookie outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today he had signed his 1942 contract and was ready to compete with Pete Reiser, Ernie Padgett, Dixie Walker and other Dodgers for one of the three outfield berths.

Tatum was sold to Brooklyn last year by Nashville, of the Southern Association. He was farmed to Los Angeles, of the Pacific Coast League, after a brief trial with the Dodgers.

Eagles Play Crackers At Arena Here Sunday

'We'll Get Even With Celtics in Tournaments,' Declares Embittered Dutch Dehnert.

The Detroit Eagles' setback here Tuesday night at the auditorium is now history, but will not be forgotten. Take the word of Dutch Dehnert, the champions' coach, for that.

"They just kicked us, that's all," exclaimed Dutch, himself a Celtic for 20 years. "We had our worst night at shooting from the field and they were plenty hot. I don't mind losing. The Yankees lose, too, you know. But I hate to see my boys play a game so far below their true form. We'll get even with the Celtics in the big tournaments at Cleveland and Chicago. They got us on the run and belted the daylight out of us, but we'll have our inning. I mean every word of it."

Dehnert revealed that he had agreed to display his club before Atlanta's second time, just to prove that his boys were real champions. The Eagles will meet the Atlanta Crackers at Warren Sports Arena Sunday afternoon and the game will be staged at popular prices.

The Crackers will be reinforced by the giant Charlie Womack, who missed recent games, and he will make Shep Luter's club a threat. Womack is regarded as the outstanding center in the south.

Fans who saw the Eagles bow to the Celtics are inclined to agree with Dehnert. A team with the Eagles' record would have to be a great ball club, and many court followers have expressed a keen desire to see the pro kings in action a second time.

The game Sunday will start at 4 o'clock and will be preceded by two preliminaries which begin at 2 p. m.

'Fired' Aide Succeeds Phelan

SEATTLE, Jan. 28.—(AP)—December 13, 1941—Fired, January 28, 1942—rehired.

That's the story of the most recent month and a half in the life of Ralph "Pest" Welch, the big, quiet fellow who today was named to succeed his old boss and coach, Jimmy Phelan, as head football coach at the University of Washington.

Welch was swept out of his 12-year tenure as assistant to Phelan last month when Director of Student Activities Ray Eckmann fired both of them, along with Backfield Coach Chester "Cotton" Wilcox.

But the kids who played their first Washington football under Welch, who coached them as freshmen, had something to say.

"If we can't have Jimmy, let's have 'Pest,'" was their battle cry, and a committee, led by Center Walt Harrison, buzzed university officials unceasingly in favor of Welch.

That their efforts bore fruit was seen in Eckmann's statement that the gridirers were among those consulted by a faculty athletic committee before Welch's selection was made.

Welch was hired on a year-to-year basis without a contract, the same arrangement which held for Phelan during the last two seasons of his 12-year stay at Washington.

Louise To Play Tainter Today In Stern Test

Dorothy Takes On Mrs. George Wilcox, After Winning, 5-4.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.

MIAMI-BILTMORE, Jan. 28.—The matches today came off as was expected, with the favored girls winning. There wasn't a match very close. George Tainter had the closest, winning from Mrs. Charles Harding by 4 and 3.

The wind was terrible today. In fact, it was hard to keep balanced on some shots. Mrs. Harding said that was quite a disadvantage to the short knockers like myself.

I just knew that we couldn't have a nice calm week here. The wind reminded me of the hurricane I was in here many years ago. However, I hope it blew itself out.

SUGGS HAS IT EASY.

Getting back to the golf played today, Louise Suggs took Irene Dill by 6 and 4. This was a good match on Louise's part for everybody thought it would be closer. Louise was out in a 39 and about one over par coming in.

She will play the match of the day tomorrow with Georgia Tainter. This will make the second time these two have met. Louise took the first match at Punta Gorda last week by a large score. Georgia is out to even the score this time, so she says. Both of these girls seem to have been suffering about the same during this week's play, so anything may happen.

I play Mrs. George Wilcox and I think I remember having played her before. She doesn't hit a ball very far, but is one of these good chippers and putters, so I will have to be right in there all the time.

KIRBY STARTS FAST.

I had an easier time than I had figured on this morning with Sally Sessions. I got off to a good start, which was a help. I won the first two holes and came to the turn with a four-up lead. I should have won the short ninth, but missed a very short putt for a win and took 39 strokes. Sally was a little inconsistent on her shots.

It seems that this Biltmore tournament will be the first one to adopt the idea of giving away defense bonds and stamps as prizes. I think it will be a good thing, and I imagine the other tournaments will take to the idea also. I know I would certainly like to have a bond since I am rather lacking in buying some for myself. So it will be an inspiration to shoot for bonds.

There is some talk of arranging a Red Cross match here over the weekend, getting the two finalists of this tournament paired with two good pros. However, it isn't definite as yet.

West End Names Officers Tonight

The West End Golf Club will hold its annual meeting tonight at the clubhouse. The meeting will be under way at 7:30 o'clock, to be preceded by a dinner at 6 o'clock. Election of officers is the main business. Paul B. Ford is president.

Atlanta's 'Golden Boy' Trains In Gotham for 1st Pro Bout

By AL SHARP.

Warren Wilson, Atlanta's "Golden Boy" whose heavyweight boxing career is being sponsored by two sportsmen, is in New York training for his professional debut next month.

Wilson's training for a bout on the Lou Nova-Joe Louis card last fall was interrupted by an odd accident in which he was gassed by fumes from a stove at Nova's camp.

"He has completely recovered from the gas," Ben Gatins, of Rumson, N. J., and Atlanta, said yesterday. "He is training under Ray Arzel again and working out at Stillman's gym every day."

"I think he's ready to make a go of it now," he added.

Gatins and Strothers Jones, New York sportsman, are sponsoring the former Southern Conference champion in his bid for fame. They are paying the freight, with their eyes on the heavyweight title for the Atlanta.

The experts who have watched Wilson box in training were impressed with the 210-pounder who won the conference title two years in a row while attending Clemson.

His best weapon is a mule-kick right that has bounced many an opponent off the floor.

Linda Discovers She No Longer Loves Greg

SYNOPSIS. Linda Phillips, an attractive stenographer in Prairieville, has been engaged for four years to Kyle Norman, whose apparent inability to hold down a job has postponed their marriage several times. Linda craves excitement. She and Sally Barnes, a friend of school days, spend a week-end with Diane Frazier, a cocktail party artist in Chicago. At a cocktail party Linda meets Greg Hollister, a chemical engineer. They are attracted to each other instantly. Soon after her return home, Greg visits her. Sally and her husband, Hugh, a banker, give a dinner party for Linda and Greg. Linda is thrilled. Greg leaves that night when her parents disapprove of him. She resigns her job and goes to Chicago to live with Diane. The day she arrives Greg, Diane and Linda attend a reception for wealthy Jerry Coleman and his bride, Brenda Jordan. There Linda meets Steve Baridon, a writer, who abandoned his career because Brenda jilted him. Linda is alone with Greg for a while, but his attitude is changed. Reluctantly the next day Diane informs Linda that Greg doesn't love her, that he has left for South America and that it was understood he would marry Diane. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. She has been contemplating suicide. He tells Linda he has decided to continue writing a book on the family farm and offers her a job as secretary. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

INSTALLMENT XLV.

Linda could not protest, because what he said was undoubtedly true. She heard him saying: "You married a fine man, my dear. Steve Baridon is a gentleman, so don't make the mistake of misjudging values." "Misjudging values? I don't understand." "There is a young man about to cut in on us. He's been watching from across the room for the past five minutes, with a gleam in his eyes. He's an old friend of yours, Linda, by the name of Hollister." Greg? At last! Linda whirled around into the arms of the man who had ruthlessly broken her heart! "Linda," Greg murmured, in the low, teasing voice she remembered so well. "I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw you. You're changed. So—so grown up." The same old Greg, his voice caressing, intimate. And yet as Linda tilted her head to meet his eyes, she detected a difference in his face, burned mahogany brown by South American sun. There was a hardness around his mouth, an expression of boredom in his eyes that she had never before noticed. "You—you're looking well, Greg," she said stiffly. Greg laughed delightedly. "Is that all you have to say to your old friend? I come back from South American wilds to find my village sweetheart married to Steve Baridon, rich, famous, and, his voice dropped artfully, "beautiful." Skillfully he had led her across the ballroom through massive doors leading into the library. Now, in the secluded spot, heavily with the scent of flowers, Linda faced Greg Hollister, eyes steady, hands clenched. Was this grinning, fatuous face the one Linda Baridon had seen so many nights in her dreams? She spoke then, and her voice was dangerously low and calm. "Is that how you thought of me?"

'Bugs' Baer Says:

I'm putting my worn-out tires on the back wheels, on the same theory used by the old lady when the liner lost its propeller.

She told the captain, "If you keep quiet about it nobody will notice it."

Well, the administration tells us not to worry about the tire shortage and to keep cool and both feet on the ground. How can you do that with your rear end jacked up all the time?

Do you know folks laughed at the rubber collar I wore when I came to New York in 1915? I bet they would like to have it now.

know that she no longer cared for Greg, would it make a difference in his manner toward her?

The door leading to the foyer opened suddenly, and Linda lifted her tear-stained face to see a couple entering the room. Though it was but dimly lighted, she could see that the newcomers were Brenda Coleman, and—Steve!

There was no chance to escape. Linda slid down in the chair until she was completely hidden from view, but she could not help overhearing their conversation. Brenda's voice was low, tense with emotion, and Steve spoke curtly, yet with understanding.

"I've been so unhappy, Steve," she was saying, ardently. "Oh, darling, you don't know how dreadful it has been for me, missing you so. Everything I did—everywhere I went I thought of you and wished with all my heart that you were with me, instead of—of Jerry."

"Please, Brenda. You mustn't say those things. After all, you are Jerry's wife now. You wanted it that way even though I begged you to reconsider before it was too late. I asked you to stick with me until I made good, and you refused."

"I was a fool!" she cried. "Oh, Steve, don't argue with me. We've lost so much precious time already; kiss me and tell me you still care for me."

Linda closed her eyes. If only she could blot out this dreadful nightmare. She had been unknowingly jealous of Brenda because she controlled Steve's emotions, his reason for living. Now she was trying to undo all that Linda's faith in the man had restored, his pride and self-control.

"You're another man's wife, Brenda," Steve sounded desperate. "And there's Linda to consider. She is my wife, you know."

"Linda, Linda! Must you prattle about her, too? What if she is married to you? Linda is perfectly mad about Greg Hollister. Everyone knows she married you only because she made a fool of herself over Greg, and he ran out on her. Why, if he snapped his finger at her now, she'd leave you flat."

"That's enough, Brenda," Steve cried harshly. "I don't want to hear any more about Linda and Greg. As long as she's contented, I won't take the first step to break our bargain."

"Bargain?" What do you mean, "bargain?"

Linda held her breath. Was Steve about to reveal their secret agreement?

Continued Tomorrow.

Every Sunday night Dinah Shore sings request songs for the studio audience after her regular Blue Network broadcasts. Everything worked out satisfactorily, though, for the audience supplied the missing words every time Dinah missed.

81 'Foreigners' Start New Life—As Americans

Action on 69 Other Applications Delayed Pending Probe.

"Today there is no proper place in America for the selfish or the laggard. The citizen indifferent to the problems of the present, whether through ignorance or inclination, and unwilling to do his part in preserving America and its institutions, is a menace to the welfare of all."

Eighty-one newly sworn American citizens, eight of them repatriated women who had married foreigners, yesterday heard United States District Judge Robert L. Russell declare eloquently from the bench that passive citizenship was valueless to the nation now.

Nineteen countries were represented by those who assumed the obligation. Action on 69 other pending applications, from subjects of Germany, Italy and Rumania, was deferred until June so further probe could be made of the technically alien enemies involved.

The circuit courtroom in the old post office was crowded with principals and witnesses. The applicants were assembled in groups of 15 and given the oath by John H. Halsted, naturalization examiner, after they formally notified the court they were eligible. Judge Russell's address was made to the entire group at the close.

Throughout the proceeding, except when the judge was speaking, one attractive applicant, the Canada-born Sophia Constance Pearson Robinson, of 985 Forrest road, knitted uninterruptedly upon a soldier's sweater.

Among the picturesque group was Isaac Henrick Mooy, native of Holland, who for 35 years on his farm near Dunwoody has flown Old Glory daily from a flagpole.

Dazzling Array Of Stars Salute FDR on Radio

Cantor Leads Nation in Greeting to President on Birthday.

President Roosevelt's first greeting on his 60th anniversary will come from studio audiences assembled in New York, Nashville, Tenn., Boston and Chicago who will join in singing the traditional "Happy Birthday to You." Special pickups from these cities will relay the greeting to the chief executive and to the nationwide radio audience. (WSB and WATL will carry at 12 midnight.)

The second greeting to the President will come from a gala array of stage, screen and radio stars who have arranged to participate in an hour-long broadcast in his honor.

The program will begin promptly at midnight tonight. With Eddie Cantor acting as master of ceremonies, NBC's international short wave stations WBCA and WBNI, and Westinghouse short wave station WBOS, the show will feature a host of top-ranking talent.

Broadway will be represented by Danny Kaye, star of the musical hit, "Let's Face It," Gertrude Lawrence, hit of "Lady in the Dark," and Maurice Evans, whose version of "Macbeth" is setting a record in New York.

Lieutenant Commander Walter Winchell, radio commentator, will offer his congratulations to the chief executive. Also appearing will Morgan, president of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday.

Carmen Miranda, currently starring with Olsen and Johnson in "Sons o' Fun," will bring her Samba savers to the microphone, and Larry Adler, famous throughout the nation as Henry Aldrich of "The Aldrich Family."

Bert Gordon, the inimitable "Mad Russian" then will extend his greetings, and three headline orchestras, those of Fred Waring, Glenn Miller, and Edgar Fairchild, will furnish music for the occasion.

All stars on the huge show will broadcast from New York, making the special program one of the most dazzling ever assembled in a single studio.

Big Town Program Honors President

Starring Edward G. Robinson, a half-hour broadcast drama dealing with infantile paralysis will be heard over the Columbia network and WGST tonight at 9:30 o'clock. The program is sponsored by the committee for the celebration of the President's birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, it was announced by A. L. Belle Isle, Fulton county chairman for the committee.

The show is Robinson's "Big Town" program, heard coast-to-coast every Thursday evening over Columbia. This particular show, however, was specially written for the President's birthday committee in its 1942 "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign.

Paul Whiteman, music director of the Burns and Allen show, has a habit of bestowing strange titles to theme music passages he prepares for montage effects for the broadcasts. One of the atmospheric numbers he devised for last Tuesday's show he dubbed "Night Ride of a Gnat"—for no apparent reason.

2 Schools Get Gifts Totaling $1,575,184.12

General Education Board Funds Given Emory, Agnes Scott.

The largest single gift in the history of Emory University and Agnes Scott College were received yesterday from the General Education Board of New York.

Emory's check was for $1,224,570.71 and Agnes Scott's totaled $350,613.41. With $300,000 previously received, the checks represent $1,875,183.88 paid by the New York foundation on its pledge of $2,500,000 to the University Center campaign.

Both gifts are endowments and only the interest will be used.

Since the General Education Board makes its payments at the rate of one dollar for every two received from other sources, the total of $1,875,183.88 paid to date means that Agnes Scott had collected $3,750,367.67 in cash on January 1, 1942. It was announced last Saturday that total subscriptions, including the foundation's pledge, have reached $10,027,000.

Such training has been requested upon recommendation of the Navy's bureau of navigation.
